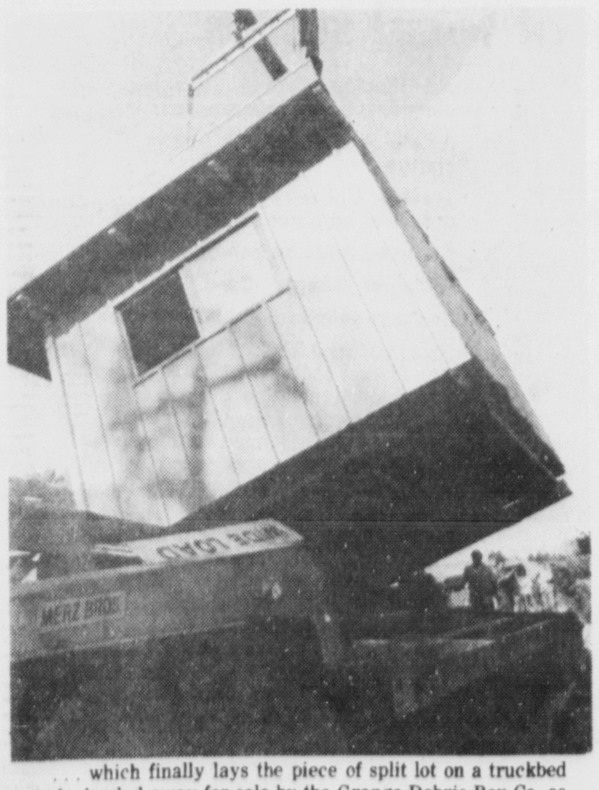
A LOT SPLIT

A lot split was a lot more than a routine property line adjustment in San Anselmo yesterday, as a workman (above) began splitting a condemned home at 24 Timothy Drive into five pieces for removal . . .

. . . and hours later finds himself scrambling for cover as the first slice of the structure is peeled free — and drops — and is heisted aloft . . .

. . . to turn slowly, slowly in the wind as it dangles on the end of 75-ton test cables hooked to a mammoth crane . . .



. . . which finally lays the piece of split lot on a truckbed to be hauled away for sale by the Grange Debris Box Co. as a house without a home. (Bob Hax photos)

Cairo Is Upset By Causeway

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Egypt has asked the United Nations for more details on Israeli construction of a causeway across the Suez Canal which Cairo considers is a serious breach of the 1973 Middle East cease-fire stabilization agreement, diplomatic sources said today.

In Jerusalem, Prime Minister Golda Meir's cabinet met in emergency session to discuss what a government source described as "delicate negotiations" on the most important of the six-point agreement—the disengagement of Egyptian and Israeli troops along the Suez Canal.

Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv, Mrs. Meir's special adviser and chief negotiator for Israel, walked into the meeting with Lt. Gen. David Elazar, armed forces chief of staff. Both carried rolls of big maps.

Yariv said after his latest round of talks Monday with Egyptian Maj. Gen. Mohammed Gamassy at Kilometer 101 on the Cairo-Suez road—their fifth—that "a disengagement of forces will be very, very difficult." Another meeting between the two generals has been set for Thursday.

The Israeli source said the negotiations centering on Mrs. Meir's proposal for a mutual withdrawal by both armies to the pre-October war lines with a UN wedge in between was more important than any of the other points in the agreement.

The two sides, meantime, continued to implement other aspects of the cease-fire agreement signed last Sunday. Egypt and Israel sent out three joint teams of soldiers to search for missing troops in the Sinai Desert.

Twenty Israeli POWs arrived at Lod Airport from Cairo—12 hours late because of what Cairo said was "technical problems." The Red Cross said Israel is expected to return at least 1,500 Egyptian POWs during the day.

In Tel Aviv, a government source said Egypt has reneged thus far on her unwritten pledge to lift its Red Sea naval blockade despite assurances to Israel by U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger who authored the cease-fire agreement. They said Egyptian warships still are enforcing the blockade at the straits of Bab el Mandeb at the southern end of the Red Sea.

Western diplomatic sources speculated Egypt may be maintaining the blockade in an effort to force Israel to pull back to the Oct. 22 cease-fire lines as ordered by the UN Security Council. A second UN ceasefire resolution stopped the fighting on Oct. 24.

Diplomatic sources in Cairo said the construction of the bridge across the canal raised serious doubts about Israel's good faith in the implementation of the UN resolutions.

San Rafael Planning Chairman Booted Out

Fuss Over General Plan Brings Firing

Jorgen V. Lunding, chairman of the San Rafael Planning Commission and an eight-year member of the agency, was fired last night by the city council. (Other San Rafael City Council stories, page 6.)

The stunning move was sparked by the latest in a series of efforts by Lunding to alter the course of the city's emerging general plan.

Councilman John A. Miskimen, declaring he had lost confidence in Lunding, moved that the commission chairman be removed from office. He was backed by colleagues Lawrence E. Mulryan and Jack G. Nixon.

The firing was bitterly opposed by Mayor C. Paul Bettini and councilman Fred E. Jensen.

The council set Nov. 29 as the deadline for filing applications to fill the vacant commission seat.

The action came after Lunding urged the council to allow the planning commission to coordinate public review of a preliminary draft of the city's general plan, a task long delegated to the city's 60-member citizen's advisory committee.

Lunding's proposal that January public hearings on a revised verion of the plan be postponed while planning commissioners "integrate input" was the latest in a series of attempts he has made to influence or reverse council decisions on the substance of the plan or public scrutiny of it.

JORGEN V. LUNDING
Chairman fired

"I've tried to be patient on this matter, but if we don't take strong action, we'll never get the general plan" to the public hearing stage, Miskimen said.

Mulryan noted that Lunding last May resisted including in the plan a residential development review procedure, or growth control procedure that forces developers to compete, despite council endorsement of the proposal.

In addition, Lunding last month attempted to restructure a schedule of public review of the plan, but was unsuccessful, Mulryan said.

Mulryan, citing a "basic disagreement in approach," said the city could not afford further delays. Nixon said the turn of events presented the city with a "crisis."

Other matters cited by the council majority as indicating inadequate performance by Lunding were:

Lunding several months ago in closed session with the city council made charges against city employees, and was directed to put those charges in writing, but never did, according to Miskimen.

Lunding publicly declared that city general plan consultants Duncan and Jones should be fired and forced to refund $20,000 in fees, and declared that the general plan contract should be awarded to another firm which "I won't reveal . . . for obvious reasons," according to Nixon.

Lunding has on at least one occasion required planning staff to transcribe commission meeting minutes verbatim, requiring a week's work by a secretary and resulting in a senseless waste of money, according to Mulryan.

Lunding was also roasted by city consultant Warren Jones, who charged the commission chairman with attempting to "waylay" the general plan, and creating an intolerable climate in which to produce that plan.

Bettini, aghast at the action of his colleagues, said there was "no cause whatever" for

Bill Goes To Senate On Saxbe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Without expressing either approval or disapproval, the Senate Judiciary Committee sent to the Senate floor today a bill whose passage is required to permit Sen. William B. Saxbe to become attorney general.

The committee avoided a decision on whether enactment of such a bill is constitutional. Sen. Sam J. Ervin D-N.C., and Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., argued that Saxbe is constitutionally prohibited from becoming attorney general until 1975, when his Senate term would expire.

The Constitution prohibits a member of Congress from taking a civil office whose salary has been raised by Congress during his term. The salary of the attorney general and all other Cabinet members was increased from $35,000 to $60,000 during Saxbe's term as a senator.

The bill, already approved by the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee which handles salary matters, would temporarily reduce the attorney general's pay to its old level to enable Saxbe to serve. Without its approval by both houses of Congress, constitutional experts say, Saxbe would be barred from assuming the top spot in the Justice Department.

Byrd says no legislation can solve Saxbe's problem, and he urged President Nixon to begin looking for another nominee.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said the bill involving Saxbe's pay would be taken up next week, possibly Tuesday or Wednesday after the Senate votes on confirmation of vice president-designate Gerald R. Ford.

To put thinge right, the administration wants Congress to cut the pay for the job back to $35,000, which would mean Saxbe would take a cut from his senator's pay of $42,500.

But Byrd said yesterday he thinks the constitutional language is "so clear that it can't be waived," and that: "If the bill is passed then I would have no alternative but to vote against Mr. Saxbe."

Ervin and Philip Hart, D-Mich., agreed with Byrd. But Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said, "I think it (the bill) is perfectly constitutional."

The committee heard from four constitutional law professors, only one of whom believed the corrective bill was constitutional.

Board Turns Down Demand To Rescind Giacomini Aide

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin County Supervisors today declined to rescind the hiring of an administrative aide for one colleague, saying the "level of service" provided has justified the expense.

The board's stand came as William F. Dresia of San Rafael presented a petition of 1,500 names urging the board to reconsider its hiring of Judy Ainsworth, administrative assistant to Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini.

Dresia, a retired school teacher, then asked the board to place the matter on a county-wide ballot, along with the 30 per cent salary hike they granted themselves earlier this year. (Supervisors increased their salaries in May from $1,100 per month to $1,400 per month. Giacomini received only a $55 per month increase because he elected to hire an aide.)

Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste, who voted against the salary increase, saying it was too large, said today the voters had had the legal recourse of putting the matter on the ballot but had failed to do so in the 60 days permitted by law.

Dresia said the board's actions caused him and others to believe "that local government was being removed much too far from the local electorate."

He said the actions were not protested during June budget hearings because most of those who had signed his petition were busy at work.

He was supported by Leo Tinkler, a San Rafael City Council candidate last April, who said that because Mrs. Ainsworth is paid with taxes from all Marin residents her job should be placed on the next ballot.

Ford Now Step Closer To New Job

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Rules Committee voted unanimously today to recommend the confirmation of Rep. Gerald R. Ford as vice president.

All nine of the members were present and voted for confirmation, Sen. Marlow Cook, R-Ky., said as he left the half-hour long private session of the panel.

Cook said preparation of the formal committee report would be completed over the four-day Thanksgiving recess this week, and the Senate would start debate of the nomination on Tuesday with a vote expected the same day.

The committee action had been expected. Ford, 60, the House Republican leader, underwent four days of hearings and extensive investigations by the Senate panel.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., the assistant Democratic leader, made the motion for confirmation and Cook seconded it.

Under the constitution both branches of Congress must approve Ford, and the House Judiciary Committee was holding its own closed-door session today to hear three witnesses

Rain Keeps Falling On Marinites

Many Marin residents, lulled by predictions of clear skies today, left their umbrellas and raincoats at home and found themselves drenched by a storm which wasn't supposed to arrive till tonight.

Torrential rains swept over some areas of the county this morning, causing traffic tieups along Highway 101, but no significant flooding, according to the California Highway Patrol.

The weatherman, reneging on his earlier forecast of fair weather, predicted rain continuing through tonight. It will be partly cloudy tomorrow, with a 30 per cent chance of showers, he said.

Rainfall reported in various parts of Marin in the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today was: Bolinas, .15 of an inch; Mill Valley, .04; Tamalpais Valley, .06; Sausalito, .01; Woodacre, .07; San Anselmo, .03 and Novato, .02.

In the 24 hours ending at noon today, .32 of an inch of rain fell in San Rafael.

SUPER-SIZED SNOOPY

A youngster applied the "cold nose test" to a giant Snoopy balloon in Akron, O., yesterday to see if he's healthy enough to take part in the annual Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York City. The beagle takes on new eminence as fashioned by Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. for the annual Macy's extravaganza. He stands 50 feet tall, is held aloft by 8,500 cubic feet of helium and will be kept under control by leashes held by 40 handlers. (UPI Telephoto)

Court Ruling To Increase Welfare Costs For State

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed reorganization of welfare for the elderly, blind ad disabled has been scuttled by a court whose ruling could increase taxpayer costs by $324 million a year.

In a sweeping decision, the 3rd District Court of Appeal said the plan to implement grant increases without legislative approval was illegal and also violated a 1945 state law requiring minimum levels of state financial support for adult recipients.

State ofdicials announced yesterday they would seek a rehearing of the case. A spokesman for Reagan expressed "confidence" the issue would be appealed to the state Supreme Court.

As they have throughout the prolonged controversy, Reagan administration officials sought to assure 500,000 aged, blind and crippled recipients that their January benefit checks would not be cut back.

In a preliminary estimate, the state Department of Social Welfare said the ruling would run about $300 million more a year in state welfare costs plus undetermined local costs.

Legislative welfare sources figured it would mandate $268 million more a year in state and local costs above what Reagan's plan would have totaled. The California Welfare Rights Organization figured the sum at $324 million over current levels.

In an opinion by Justice Bertram Janes, a Reagan appointee, the court held that effective Jan. 1, $130 a month in federal funds would be added to the state minimum support level per recipient —$320 for the disabled, $246 for the elderly and $252 for the blind.

Reagan had intended to increase grants for the elderly and disabled from a current average $212 a month to $221, and to $237 for the blind on Jan. 1, the day the federal government takes over administration of welfare for adult recipients.

The court struck down the plan because the legislature had not given Reagan the authority to act to plug California into the federal system. It also said the plan violated existing law requiring minimum state contributions of $122 for the blind, $116 for the elderly and $100 average for the disabled.

State Controller Houston Flournoy, a Republican gubernatorial candidate and keeper of the state's checkbook, urged Reagan to forget further legal action and immediately call a special session of the legislature to head off what he called threatened "chaos."

But Democratic legislative leaders such as Assemblyman John Burton, D-San Francisco, were cool toward a special session. Burton said the court acted to "protect" welfare grants and the "need for legislative action is less urgent than otherwise would be the case."

Traitor Tag Will Stick For Arnold

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite pleas from historians, the Army will not grant amnesty to America's most famous traitor —Maj. Gen. Benedict Arnold, convicted two centuries ago of misconduct in office.

Dr. Vincent A. Lindner, a history buff from Scotch Plains, N.J., several months ago brought the case of Arnold before the Army Board for Correction of Military Records, saying the evidence was insufficient for convicting Arnold in 1780.

Raymond J. Williams, secretary of the board, said yesterday: "Our concern was to see the guy (Arnold) got a fair shake. But the evidence Dr. Lindner produced was not sufficient to raise a reasonable doubt of Arnold's guilt among the board." He said the five board members were unanimous in refusing amnesty to Arnold.

Senate Votes Nixon Energy Crisis Powers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted President Nixon the sweeping powers he requested to deal with the energy crisis.

The Senate passed the the energy emergency bill 78 to 6 Monday. If approved by the House it would allow Nixon to ration gasoline and other fuels, limit energy use by business, relax clean air rules and curb oil exports.

The Senate-passed bill allows Nixon to order rationing of gasoline or any other fuel. He could ban export of any scarce fuel. He could order certain oil wells to be allowed to flow faster than their rated efficient capacity.

He could force power plants that can switch from "clean" but scarce fuels to "dirty" but plentiful ones to do so.

He could ease up on clean-air requirements.

He could set a specific reduction of energy use by businesses. He could provide incentives for car pooling and use of mass transit.

If the bill passes the House and Nixon signs it, he would be required to outline a nationwide rationing and conservation plan able to cut energy use by 10 per cent within 10 days and at least 25 per cent within a month. But he would not be required to impose it.

Scali Under Care Of Heart Center

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — John Scali, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, was in good condition today at the Arizona Heart Institute of St. Joseph's Hospital.

Scali, 55, a former newsman, entered the institute Sunday for treatment of what was described as "continued circulatory problems." He was being treated by the institute's director, Dr. Edward B. Diethrich, a nationally known heart specialist.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Gas Price Hike

SAIGON (UPI) — The South Vietnamese government raised gasoline prices today in an attempt to cut civilian energy consumption by 25 per cent within two months.

The gas price hike ordered today could cause political problems for the government of President Nguyen Van Thieu. South Vietnamese, motorized by subsidy from the United States during the 1960s, have long considered cheap gasoline as a right.

A government spokesman said both grades of commercial gasoline will cost about 32 cents a gallon more, beginning immediately. That would raise the price of premium gasoline, the most widely used, to about $1 a gallon. Regular gasoline now will cost about 92 cents a gallon.

Wife In Charge

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — For about four hours, President Juan D. Peron left his wife in charge of the country yesterday and went to Uruguay to settle a century-old border dispute with Argentina's neighbor across the Platte River.

Peron, 78, signed an agreement with President Juan Maria Bordaberry of Uruguay settling the long dispute over rival claims to territorial water in the river.

Skylab Coolant

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 3 astronauts have put a fresh supply of fluid into their orbiting workshop's indispensable equipment cooling system.

The all-rookie crew, Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue, worked almost in silence all day Monday transferring baggage brought with them into the eight-room ship that may be their home for the next three months.

Rebellion Crushed

ATHENS (UPI) — Greek authorities pulled most of their tanks away from the calm capital today but police continued their search for participants in the now crushed anti-government rebellion.

A few armored tanks and personnel carriers guarded parliament and armored cars remained in front of the central building of Athens University.

But the student-led rebellion against military backed President George Papadopoulos appreared to have been crushed.

Walk For Teddy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Slowly working his way to recovery, 12-year-old Edward Moore Kennedy Jr. has walked for the first time with the aid of parallel bars.

A spokesman for Georgetown University Hospital said the son of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., worked yesterday in physical therapy using parallel bars for the first time since the amputation of his cancerous right leg Saturday.

No further details were available, except that he was in "excellent spirits."

Irish Bombs

BELFAST (UPI) — The Irish Republican Army (IRA) launched a new bomb and bullet campaign today and Protestant extremists threatened to start killing moderate Protestant politicians.

A suspected Protestant bomb factory blew up in County Tyrone with a roar heard for 20 miles, and police pathologists were examining pieces of bone and skin found afterwards to discover whether they were of human or animal origin.

If human, a police spokesman said, it would raise the toll to 905 persons killed in four years of violence among the Protestants, Roman Catholics and security forces of Northern Ireland.

Oil Problems

VIENNA (UPI) — The Arab "oil weapon" threatened today to split the European Common Market and placed Japan between an irresistible force and an immovable object, diplomats said.

Foreign ministers of the nine Common Market nations held a meeting in Copenhagen today to discuss the Arab decision to cancel a scheduled 5 per cent oil cutback for eight of them, but leave Holland under a total boycott.

Fuel-hungry Japan was caught in a dilemma over how to win exemption from Arab oil cuts —the immovable object — while safeguarding U.S. sales, much of which is handled by Jewish-owned import firms — the irresistible object.

Tam High District Must Cut Budget Or Face Big Deficit

By BILL ROBERTS

Cuts must be made in the Tamalpais High School District's projected 1974-75 budget or there will be an $861,835 deficit, trustees were told las night.

Frank A. Cassou, district business director, said the deficit is largely the result of overestimating student enrollment this year.

Cassou said the district had projected an average daily attendance of 6,100 and received state education funds based on that figure. But the actual attendance is 5,740.

Because of the difference, $471,070 will be withheld by the state next year to make up the difference.

Cassou said the enrollment drop was the result of lower enrollments in junior and senior classes at Sir Francis Drake and Tamalpais high schools. He said several factors including the increased cost of housing in Marin and the Marin Municipal Water District's ban on new connections may play a part in the decrease but he said the district has been unable to pinpoint the exact cause.

The remainder of the deficit is the result of the annual 5 per cent increase in salaries, higher employee benefits increases and related items.

Supt. Robert D. Torrey told trustees he has declared a moratorium on hiring teachers and a 30-day freeze on expenditures for capital outlay or replacement of equipment.

The district is actually overstaffed, according to Cassou, and the moratorium on hiring will cut the staff to the board approved student-teacher ratio. He said there are 13 more teachers than present enrollment warrants.

Torrey said the moratorium will continue until the approved student-teacher ratio is met.

Cassou said that the ratio is different for different programs but is basically 24.5 to one ratio.

Trustees approved a $10,800 expenditure for district auditors to design and update the district's accounting system.

The system will be redesigned by Main Lafrentz and Co. of San Francisco who have also done financial consulting for the district in the past.

Much of the routine accounting and semimonthly financial analysis is still done by hand under the present system which was designed in 1959, according to Cassou.

Corte Madera To Revise Priority List For Police

The Corte Madera Town Council decided last night to revise police department priorities to put more emphasis on preventive patrol and slightly less on traffic enforcement.

"I want the police out there where they are visible," said Councilman Edward W. Colthurst in pressing for the reordering, which was adopted by a 3-to-1 vote.

Answering calls "of both emergency and service nature" remains at the top of the list, but preventive patrol was raised from fifth to second priority. Traffic enforcement dropped to third, followed by handling juvenile matters, criminal investigation and administrative duties.

The previous set of priorities, adopted July 30, had elevated traffic enforcement from fifth to second, and a 91 per cent increase in citations followed.

Only "a very small segment of the public" had complained about the jump in traffic tickets and "about three compliments a week" had been received about reduced speeding, reported Police Chief David L. McIntosh.

The Corte Madera Town Council also:

MODESTO — Refused by a 3-to-1 vote to allow police officer John Cuneo to attend law enforcement academy classes at Modesto Junior College Dec. 10-March 1, because Cuneo would not be available for emergency duty during the period. Attendance at a similar course later at Santa Rosa Junior College was authorized.

STREETS — Appointed John Betonte supervisor of streets.

PERMITS — Approved requests for home occupation permits for Russell D. Ralsten, a contract interior designer; Paula Caroe, a beautician, and Marilyn Jones, a public stenographer.

SEWER — Approved plans and specifications for a sewer on Pavilion Path.

WIDENING — Postponed a decision to widen the street in front of 20 and 22 Fairview Avenue until staff could provide more information at the next meeting.

TREE — Denied a request by Harold A. Hansen to remove and replace a tree at 5 Spindrift Passage whose roots were beginning to crack the sidewalk, but authorized Hansen to repair the sidewalk at his own expense.

PERSONNEL — Decided not to introduce the personnel ordinance until after the newly-elected council is seated in January.

MEETING — Adjourned until its next regular meeting Dec. 3 at 7:30 p.m.

Recruiting Plan Backed

A program for recruiting women and minority group members for district jobs was unanimously approved last night by Tamalpais High School District trustees.

With little comment, having considered the program at two previous meetings, trustees created a committee to report on district hiring of women and minority members, seek applicants from these groups and hear complaints against the district.

Trustee Frank L. Miller voiced concern that the policy also cover discrimination in hiring based on age and was assured by staff that discrimination against young or old was prohibited.

The Tamalpais High School District board also:

COMMITTEE — Was told by Elaine Brockbank, chairman of the district citizens advisory committee, that the committee will study problems related to counseling, curriculum, communication and cooperation between elementary schools and district high schools.

DANCES — Heard recommendation by Torrey that school junior proms be permitted off campus.

CONTRACT — Reviewed a contract with Tom Brown for an estimated $1,025 to build a harpsichord for the district.

INDUSTRY — Approved $75 for district membership in the Marin County Industry Education Council.

PROPERTY — Approved district policy for disposing of surplus property after sealed bids are received on the property.

PERSONNEL — Hired Martha McIntyre as an instructional aide at Tamalpais High School for $3.45 per hour.

CLOSED — Met in closed session to hear charges against district personnel but took no action.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to Dec. 5 at 8 p.m. in the Redwood faculty lounge.

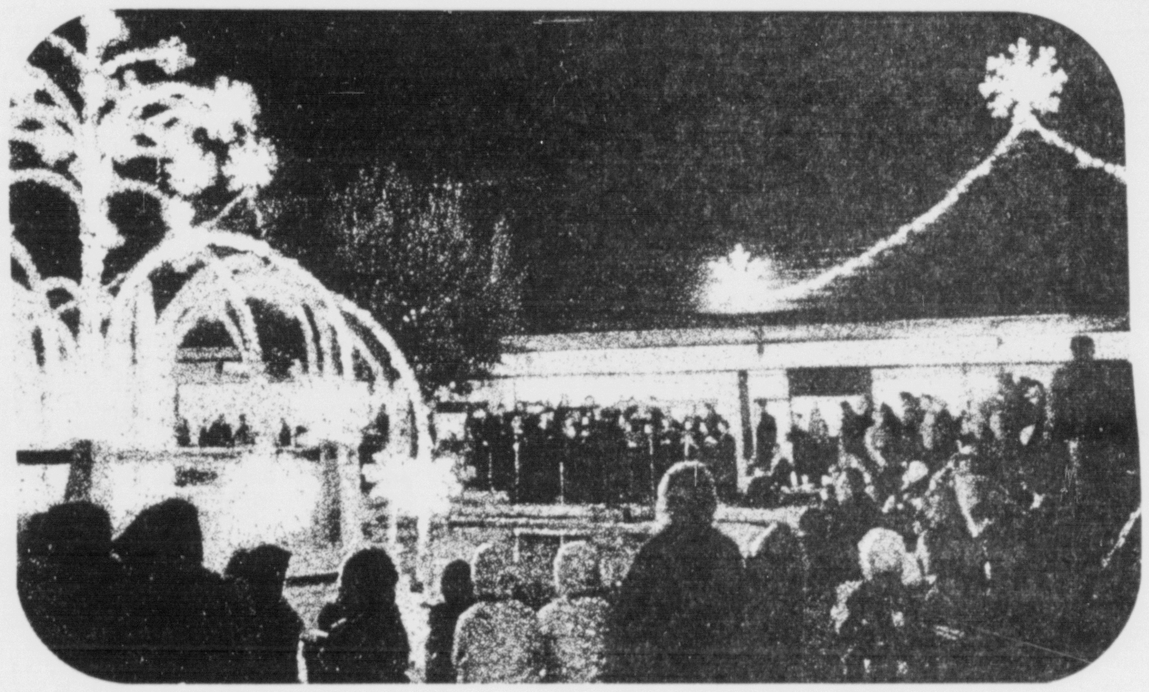
NOVEMBER 23rd AT THE MALL

Christmas Lights On

The "Lights On" ceremony at The Mall has become a Marin tradition. This photo shows last year's event, moments after the choir's clear voices rang out, and thousands of twinkling lights came alive throughout the shopping center. Sparkling snowflakes and glittery tree shapes have welcomed our neighbors during the Christmas season since 1966.



NOVEMBER 24th AT THE MALL

Christmas Lights Off

Those thousands of little light bulbs have added greatly to the pleasure of Christmas shopping at The Mall. But they do use considerable energy; so, this year, exterior Christmas decorations will be lighted for just two evenings — November 23rd and December 24th. The amount of energy thus saved is enough to supply electrical needs for 5000 average homes for one normal 24-hour day.

BIRTHDAY REMEMBERED

Mansfield's Tribute To Kennedy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who delivered the eulogy to President John F. Kennedy in the Capitol Rotunda 10 years ago, paid tribute to the late President today.

Titled "John Fitzgerald Kennedy, A Remembrance," Mansfield's tribute was:

What is ten years remembered:

Is it shots of infamy in a Dallas street?

A clinical report of a murder,
Is it a dress dark-splotched with blood?

The swollen faces of grief. Is it a rain-filled sky over

Washington? A silent throng under the Capitol's dome. Is it two children and a child's single cry?

A riderless horse.

An intonation in a cathedral.

The flickering of a flame.
What is ten years remembered:
How much rain beating on a grave-site? How much snow falling and filtered sunlight? How many mind-flashes of a man?

Of his humor and humanity.

Of his sense and sensitivity.
Ten years after, it is all remembered and more: An assertion of human decency

A trust of freedom

A confidence in reason

A love of country

A kindled hope for the nation.
This was John Fitzgerald
Kennedy.

This is John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

Ten years after.

Two Are Hurt In Auto Crash

Two Los Angeles residents were injured in a two-car accident at 9:45 a.m. yesterday on Old Redwood Highway near Cotati.

Bernard Fields, 73, was reported in fair condition at Hillcrest Hospital with a broken pelvis. His wife, Lena, 72, was also reported in fair condition with a possible back injury.

The California Highway Patrol said the accident occurred when Fields' car pulled out of a private driveway into the path of a car driven by John Short, 20, of 191 Center Lane, Cotati.

Anti-Nixon Drive

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The American Civil Liberties Union of Northern California reported yesterday it has collected 24,700 signatures on petitions for the impeachment of President Nixon.

Martha Says Nixon 'Knew Everything'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Martha Mitchell said today that President Nixon "knew everything that was going on" in his reelection campaign, before and after the Watergate break-in and bugging.

She said that Nixon and her husband, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, went out on the presidential yacht Sequoia "every night and discussed the campaign from beginning to end."

"There wasn't anything that Nixon didn't know," she said in a telephone interview. "This is the truth."

Nixon has asserted publicly on several occasions that his re-election campaign was the "first campaign I didn't run" and that "overzealous but well-intentioned" supporters on the Committee to Re-elect the President may have been responsible for the Watergate developments.

Mrs. Mitchell said that her husband would come back from his boating trips with Nixon "and told me he had discussed the campaign."

She said that once her husband came home and told her during the campaign "the President knows everything that goes on. The President knows where you were today."

Mrs. Mitchell has been separated from her husband since he moved out of their Fifth Avenue apartment in New York last September. She did not want to talk about their estrangement, saying "she did not want to hurt him," but did call him a "gone man."

She said she had not been in touch with him and "he is living under an assumed name" at a hotel in New York.

Mrs. Mitchell repeated her claim that campaign organizers had a "green campaign book and everything they were going to do was in it." She said all the campaign books had been shredded.

Miss California Contest Next

Hannele Damon of Rohnert Park will represent Marin and Sonoma counties Saturday in the Miss California contest.

Miss Damon, 18, is a native of Finland and came to the United States as a youngster. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Damon and majors in fashion merchandising at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Miss Damon was first runner-up for the title last June at the Sonoma-Marin Fair and assumed the crown when winner Diveana Frivaldo of Santa Rosa stepped down.

The winner of the Miss California pageant will go on to compete in the Miss USA contest. The pageant in Long Beach will be televised statewide.

Higher Christmas Tree Prices Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation hasn't spared Christmas trees. They will cost about 4 to 5 per cent more this year, a government forestry expert predicted today.

Dr. Richard Marks, a forestry specialist for the Agriculture Department's Extension Service, estimated that the 4 to 5 per cent increase would be tacked on to 1972 prices, which averaged $1 to $1.50 per foot. A six foot tree which cost $6 to $9 in 1972 may cost from about $6.25 to nearly $9.50 this December.

Judge Hands Down Ruling In Verse

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Edward R. Becker yesterday made a ruling in verse on the motion of American Trading Transportation to throw out a suit, for less than $1,000 in wages, filed by Richard MacKensworth, 44, a sailor who said he was dismissed before the end of a voyage.

He said the verses were inspired by the opposing lawyers in the case, who filed their briefs in rhyme. It read in part:

This opinion now reached its final border,

And the time has come to enter an order,

Which, in a sense, is its ultimate crux,

But also plaintiff claims under a thousand bucks.

So, while trial counsel are doubtless in fine fettle,

With many fine fish in their trial kettle,

We urge them not to test their mettle,

Because for the small sum involved,

It makes more sense to settle.

LUNDING

firing Lunding, said he was ashamed at the ouster, and declared the dismissal "one of the most embarrassing moments in my public life."

Jensen described the matter as a disgrace: "In my 19 years on the council, this is the first time in the history of San Rafael where democracy has gone out the window."

Both Bettini and Jensen left the meeting early, although not promptly after Lunding's firing.

The 52-year-old Lunding, who managed a smile and endured the lacing with grace, told the Independent-Journal that his ouster did not "really matter" since he was acquiring property in the city redevelopment area and would be required to relinquish his post anyway.

He said the emerging general plan "has no substance at all" and said he was not surprised at his firing since the council majority has "hung me out in the cold" since the April council elections. Lunding backed unsuccessful council candidate Thomas R. O'Toole.

"To hell with it," he said.

Lunding, a self-employed engineering and planning consultant, was appointed to the commission in 1965 and was elected as the agency's chairman last August.

He lives at 4 Peacock Drive.

Purchase Of Bus On Board Agenda

The possible purchase of a 12-passenger school bus to use for field trips will be discussed tonight at 8 o'clock by the Reed School district board, meeting at Del Mar School.

Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello said he is recommending buying the bus for about $4,500 to avoid having several parents drive cars for such trips. He said, however, that he is planning to get a corps of parent volunteers to get bus driving licenses to use the vehicle.

Also tonight, Giovanniello will recommend $9,500 worth of small improvements to the grounds of various district schools, including turfing, retaining walls and improving parking and busloading areas.

Rains Postpone Sewer Line Job

Ross Valley Sanitary District has suspended work on a new trunk sewer line in Ross because of heavy rains.

According to Ned J. Ongaro, district manager, the project was begun in July and scheduled for completion Jan. 1.

The project, about half done, is to replace the city's original trunk line which was installed in 1922 and was becoming inadequate.

Ongaro said the project delay would not cause disruption of sewer service since the old trunk line is still operational and can meet demands until the new system is completed.

He said the project will be restarted in the spring at the first break in the weather.

Man Is Burned In Cotati Fire

A Petaluma man suffered third degree burns of the right arm and shoulder in a Cotati fire yesterday.

Raymond L. Ahlers, 46, of 5 Elm Circle, was reported in fair condition today at Hillcrest Hospital.

Cotati firemen said Ahlers was burned as he was pouring gasoline into the carburetor of a truck while another man was attaching jumper cables to the battery. Sparks from the battery ignited the gasoline.

The 10:23 a.m. fire at 539 West Sierra Avenue also damaged the engine of the truck owned by H and H Construction of Petaluma.

Threat To Tourism

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— San Francisco's Convention and Visitors' Bureau warns that the energy crisis threatens at least part of the city's $312 million-a-year tourist business.

POSITION

per year position was approved by all supervisors who agreed the dispute was over the "level of service" their constituents are entitled to.

Giacomini said he had campaigned on hiring an aide because of the size and diversity of his district, adding he works 70 to 80 hours a week on county business and Mrs. Ainsworth another 60.

He said he appreciated the petitioners' view but disagreed with it as a "basic philosophical difference" in how he should do his job.

Giacomini also charged that the petition was politically motivated, in part, and said he took "umbrage" with the involvement of Independent-Journal associate editor Bryce W. Anderson, an "involvement" he did not explain. (Anderson was not a signer of the petition.)

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere said he agreed with Giacomini's need for an assistant and said he may ask for one in the future if his workload requires it.

Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Michael Wornum expressed similar views while Baptiste said he had voted against the position in June but supports it now.

(Baptiste's vote against the position was based on the salary level and not the position itself.)

Auto Insurance Rates To Go Up

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Allstate Insurance Co., which insures about one million Californians, said yesterday its auto coverage rates will be increased by an average of 6 per cent in the state.

The increase, affecting all policies as they are renewed, was made necessary by rising costs, the firm said.

A spokesman for the company said policy holders in Los Angeles will probably have the highest rate increases. However, he was unable to give the specific rate increases for different areas of the state.

The announcement said the cost of liability, medical and property coverage would go up. However, the rates for auto theft coverage would drop by about 16 per cent.

Furnishings Bring $239,470

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An auction of actress Merle Oberon's surplus furnishings brought in $239,470 last night—and there is still another night to go.

A London antique dealer paid $90,000 for a gold and black lacquer cabinet, and a 311-piece Paris porcelain dinner service dating to 1885 brought in $68,000, said a spokesman for Sotherby-Park Bernet of Los Angeles, the auction house.

Many purchases were made by magazine publisher Christopher Forbes, the auction house said. Miss Oberon decided to sell her furnishings because she is now living in a smaller house.

No Specifics On Charges

NEW YORK (UPI) — The White House has not responded to the National News Council's request for more information on President Nixon's charges of "outrageous, vicious, and distorted" news coverage by the three television networks.

The council's associate director Ned Schnurman said "We have had no response to our two telegrams which were sent to the White House on Oct. 30, and Nov. 14."

Schnurman said "We asked each time for specifics regarding the President's charges" that were made in his Oct. 26 news conference.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pacific Telephone Co. announced yesterday daytime temperatures will be lowered to a maximum of 68 degrees in its 2000 buildings in order to conserve energy.

Man Acquitted In Knifing Case

A Marin Superior Court jury deliberated three hours yesterday before acquitting Russell Kenneth Young, 30, of knifing a Bolinas man in August.

Young, of no known address, had been accused of assault with a deadly weapon in the stabbing of Larry Freeman of 6 Park Road.

Witnesses at the time told Marin Sheriff's deputies the two argued and Young drew a knife and attacked Freeman.

Judge David Menary Jr. presided over Young's four-day trial.

Tiburon Downtown Plan To Be Aired

According to Arjo, the session is scheduled to give residents a chance to ask questions about the development proposed for 36 acres of property owned by Southern Pacific Railroad.

Substitute For Energy Crisis

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — The energy shortage has forced Cornelia Wallace, Alabama's first lady, to give up race cars for horses.

"It's an excellent way to travel if you're not in a hurry," Mrs. Wallace said yesterday in a speech to the local section of the National Council of Jewish Women. Mrs. Wallace, who has driven pace cars for stock car races and ridden in Phantom jetfighters, said she recently drove a harness team in a horse show.

The first lady said if women are allowed to fly with men on space flights, the wives of the male astronauts should get the job.

Guilty Plea To Heroin Charge

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — Richard A. Manzie, the husband of singer Barbara McNair, pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of attempting to possess approximately 13 grams of heroin.

Manzie, 35, and his wife were arrested Oct. 16, 1972, at a Playboy club near here after she signed for a package delivered to her at the hotel. Her husband was said to have been given the package, which allegedly held the heroin. The charge against Miss McNair was dismissed last April 18. The U.S. attorney's office said at that time the grand jury "decided there was not proper cause" to charge the 38-year old singer.

Street Cleaners' Pay Hike Backed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A judge said yesterday the city's street cleaners were entitled to a $2,000 raise —to $13,200 a year.

Superior Court Judge Ira A. Brown ruled the street cleaners' duties are "substantially similar" to what are known as class 3 laborers in private industry.

The City Charter requires that city employes be paid private industry hourly wages.

Brown ruled in a suit filed by the Laborers Union.

Mill Valley Delays On Downtown Parking Lot

The Mill Valley City Council cast a cool eye last night on a proposal from a businessmen's group that the city build a two-story, 200-car downtown parking garage.

The council voted unanimously to continue the question until the city's general plan consultants, Sedway-Cooke of San Francisco, advises where parking should go.

Attorney Gregory Dyer of Mill Valley presented the proposal for the businessmen's assistance committee appointed by the council about a year ago. He asked that the city spend $10,000 to study feasibility of a parking structure on a lot just off Miller Avenue behind Old Brown's Store and the Wells Fargo Bank. He said it could be topped with tennis courts and a playground.

"We feel it will be visually acceptable because it will be behind other buildings, and it can also fly financially," said Dyer.

Councilman Edward J. Boessenecker said that it would be unreasonable to build such a garage when the new environmental protection agency rules might penalize a city heavily for its parking spaces.

Also regarding parking, councilman Robert E. Capron said that the city had received an offer of a six-month option on a lease for a parcel at 400 Miller Avenue.

Nixon Said Not Closed To Hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has not "ruled out" going before the Senate Watergate Committee for public interrogation, Sen. Barry M. Goldwater said today.

Goldwater, in an interview with United Press International, said Nixon told a group of Republican senators at a White House meeting last week that an appearance before the committee was one of several moves he is considering as part of an all-out drive to answer all questions about his scandal-plagued administration.

"He listed several things he might do and one of them was going before the committee," the Arizona Republican said.

Goldwater quoted Nixon as saying that an appearance before the seven-member investigative panel was a possibility that "can't be ruled out."

Goldwater has been urging Nixon to go before the committee "and allow the whole country to watch his interrogation." But he said several senators at the meeting last Wednesday "urged him not to do it."

He said he thought Nixon's latest series of meetings with members of Congress and other appearances to answer questions about Watergate had helped regain "some of his lost credibility."

"But I'm not sure that operation candor will in itself do it," Goldwater said. "He has to demonstrate in a series of incidents that he is a real leader. What he does on this energy crisis will be important."

Goldwater said he thought Nixon's handling of questions from a group of newspaper editors Saturday was "masterful."

He recalled telling Nixon in a recent telephone conversation, "Mr. President, I wish you'd do me a favor. Never make another speech. I don't know who's writing your speeches. Just get before the press."

"He's a master at it," Goldwater said in the interview, "and it did him a lot of good."

Goldwater said if Nixon "lets this go as a one-shot effect, he's going to be in trouble. He's too much of a loner at a time when he needs all the friends he can get."

He said he had been "fearful of further disclosures" arising in the Watergate scandal "which would absolutely destroy" Nixon. But he said he now believes the President has halted his plunge in the public opinion polls and will begin to come up.

Goldwater said a resignation by Nixon "would be disastrous" for the country. "I don't think we could live through it. I don't want him to ... even consider resigning unless there's a lot more showing than we see right now."

Sycamore Avenue Residents Are Assured Of No High Speed Road

The Mill Valley City Council assured Sycamore Avenue residents last night that if their street is extended to the Shelter Ridge area the city will prevent the avenue from becoming a high-speed, arterial roadway.

Several Sycamore Avenue residents raised objections during discussion of what steps the city would take in building the extension to serve a new public safety headquarters in East Mill Valley. Voters have approved two bond issues for building the police and fire quarters at Sycamore and Roque Moraes Drive.

The extension would run from the Mill Valley Middle School, where Sycamore now ends in a stub, across the marshland to a frontage road along Highway 101.

"We don't want a third artery running through Mill Valley," said Dean Jones. "This street is going to funnel traffic away from Enchanted Knolls to Sycamore Avenue. It will interrupt the fabric of our life."

Ralph Mead asked: "Will this make Sycamore Avenue into another East Blithedale?"

Mayor Jean S. Barnard said the extension is crucial to the new public safety building and said that plans for the extension date from 1962.

Councilman Edward J. Boessenecker said the council could make the extension "a winding street, so we're sure it's the slowest way to the freeway."

The council voted unanimously to protect present residents of Sycamore from excessive traffic.

It also agreed to continue planning to build the public safety complex in its proposed site and voted to limit its size to 6,000 square feet for the fire department and 8,500 square feet for police.

Membership of the building committee working on the structure's plans was expanded from the architect and several city officials to include members of the city council, architectural advisory committee and planning commission.

The Mill Valley City Council Also:

REZONING — Granted an appeal of Sidney Hendricks from a planning commission denial of his request for rezoning of property on Redwood Highway near Shelter Bay from commercial-recreation to commercial-recreational to commercial-general-planned unit development. Hendricks plans an office complex on the land.

CABLE — Granted a 50-cent increase in monthly service charges for six months to Tele-Vue Systems, the cable television firm. Also asked the Marin Community Video Association to return on Dec. 3 to discuss how to achieve more community involvement in cable television, and agreed to set up a citizens committee to review the city's franchise with Tele-Vue.

BUS DEPOT — Appropriated $2,000 to hire a landscape consultant to draw up a planting plan for the exterior of the city-owned bus depot. Depot tenant Lendon C. Ganey agreed to pay $500 to carry out the landscaping plan once developed.

MEETING — Continued the meeting until 8 p.m. next Monday at the library gallery.

Hearings Set On General Plan

The San Anselmo Planning Commission last night set 8 p.m. Dec. 10 in city hall as the time of a public hearing on two elements of the city's new general plan.

The conservation and open space elements will be discussed, according to the city planning department.

The commission next meets at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 28 in Robson House in a joint session with the city's citizen's committee on the general plan.

Country Club Annex Halt Ordered

The San Rafael City Council yesterday was ordered by a Marin Superior Court judge to abandon annexation of the Country Club area or appear in Superior Court at 9 a.m. Dec. 12 to show cause why it should not do so. (Another San Rafael City Council story, page 1.)

Issuing the show cause order requested by Country Club resident Virginia M. Manion was Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson. Wilson, however, rejected a request that the city stay annexation proceedings pending resolution of the matter.

Copies of the order were handed to councilmen shortly before last night's council meeting in city hall.

Mrs. Manion, represented in the action by her husband, attorney Donald S. Manion, declared in a petition for writ of mandate that the city has acted illegally in the bid to annex Country Club since the city annexation resolution is "materially defective" since it fails to outline conditions imposed by the Local Agency Formation Commission.

City Atty. Fred C. Robbins said last night that the legal action is "premature" and has no basis at all.

City councilmen last night learned that residents promoting the annexation have collected enough signatures to force an election, and they set 8 p.m. Dec. 17 as the time for a public hearing on the matter.

If property owners representing 50 per cent of the community's assessed valuation protest the move, or if a majority votes no in an annexation election, the annexation attempt will be killed.

Manion is a member of Homeowners Opposed to Political Expansion, a local group opposed to the annexation bid.

Mailers sent to residents by the group urge rejection of the annexation move, saying city taxes are increasing, noting that the city's emerging general plan calls for sprinkling areas like Country Club with moderate income housing units, and saying the area might form a fire protection district, rather than annexing to San Rafael to obtain better fire service, among other things.

The group has described the annexation bid as merely another layer of unnecessary government.

During the French regime in Canada, adult males were required to possess arms and ammunition and to do monthly drill.

Priest Recruits Sought With Ads

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Catholic Archdiocese of New York yesterday announced an up-to-date, $100,000 advertising campaign designed to improve its public image and help recruit young men into the priesthood.

The 13-week campaign, complete with a special hot-line telephone number —"P-R-I-E-ST-S"—to handle calls from potential recruits, is called, "The New York Priest. God Knows What He Does for a Living."

The five ads, to run a total of 150 times in metropolitan newspapers and regional editions of news magazines, all show

Council Calls For Applicants For Advisory Committee Spots

The San Rafael City Council last night called for applicants within 30 days for the city's citizen's advisory committee on redevelopment.

The council, however, set no goals or responsibilities for the group. It tentatively set the committee's size at seven members.

The city administration noted that the council had agreed to appoint such an advisory group as part of a compromise that ended litigation over the redevelopment project, and noted that it has already agreed to appoint Joaquin Gallardo to the group.

Gallardo for several weeks challenged the redevelopment plan as a lone citizen, then dropped his suit when assured he would be appointed to the redevelopment committee, among other things.

The council also allocated $10,000 from the city redevelopment budget to pay for continued legal services from redevelopment attorney Steven Goldfarb; set a special meeting for 5 p.m. today city hall to award a bid for a $1 million redevelopment bond, and appointed city finance director John B. Averett as redevelopment agency treasurer, an unpaid post.

The San Rafael City Council also:

CLAIMS — Denied a $250,000 claim by Henry Miggins, injured last July while working on a city assessment district project, and a $1,717 claim by R. Battaglia for damage done to his home when a city sewer pipe overflowed.

COMMUNE — Postponed until 8 p.m. Dec. 3 action on an anticommune ordinance prohibiting more than five unrelated persons from living in a single-family residence.

BAN — Extended for eight months a moratorium on conversion of apartments to condominiums.

RACQUET CLUB — Despite a $3,000 investment of staff time, abandoned formation of the Rafael Racquet Club Estates Utility Undergrounding Assessment District after petitions showed 51.7 per cent of the area opposed to district formation.

MOORING ROAD — Continued for two weeks action on the Mooring Road Sewer Assessment District.

DEFERRED PAY — Approved a deferred compensation plan for employees, allowing them to defer portions of monthly paychecks and thus some income taxes, until retirement. Councilmen Fred E. Jensen opposed the plan, calling it a method of tax evasion for the rich.

DEFENSE — Told City Atty. Fred C. Robbins to meet with county counsel to determine what fair share, if any, the city should pay for legal defense of Ernest W. Nash, a voiceprint expert being sued by Steven Chapter, whom Nash identified in a criminal trial as the man who threatened to bomb a phone company office. Chapter was acquitted.

CITY MANAGER — Set discussion of a contract with City Mgr. William J. Bielser for closed session on Dec. 3 at 7:30 p.m. Proposed is a contract setting a $26,000 annual salary and annual review of the manager.

CCPC — Said the city can take no action on a City-County Planning Council proposal for an advisory review agency until the emerging general plan is completed.

ORDINANCE — Told staff to prepare an ordinance providing for city inspection of property when it is offered for sale, for review at 8 p.m. Dec. 3.

ARCHITECTS — Called for proposals from local architects on design of a community recreation center to be located in Albert Park, and appointed Mulryan and Miskimen to review those proposals.

CLAIM — Rejected for the second time an $880 claim by the Assembly of God Church for damage done to a church roof by a falling limb.

OPEN SPACE — Exercised a $24,000 option for about two acres of property known as lands of Sthymmel-Baccone between Knocknabul and Wintergreen Terrace.

BUS SERVICE — Agreed to share a $1,320 tab with the Marin County Transit District for Saturday bus service during the Christmas season that will provide San Anselmo and San Rafael residents with transportation to downtown San Rafael and Northgate shopping areas.

ROAD — Heard Public Works Director Norris Rawles report that the state has "informally" pledged to pay $150,000 of a $200,000 tab for improvement on Bellam Boulevard between Francisco Boulevard and Jacoby Street.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 5 p.m. today in city hall to award a bid for a redevelopment bond, and set the next regular meeting for 8 p.m. Dec. 3.

Panel Delays On Cox Firing Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Judiciary Committee today postponed for a week a decision whether to reopen its investigation of the firing of Archibald Cox and conflicting reports on former Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson's involvement.

The committee agreed to vote tomorrow on a bill to create an office of special Watergate prosecutor which would be filled by an appointee of the courts and not by President Nixon. A similar bill is to be voted upon by the House next week.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., is seeking to reinvestigate the firing of Cox as special Watergate prosecutor in light of reported statements made by Nixon and Richardson.

According to Republican senators, Nixon insisted during meetings with them last week that Richardson approved of an arrangement by which Cox would not be allowed to continue court action to get the Watergate tapes. Cox was fired when he defied this order.

Richardson has said he did not approve such an arrangement. At a Washington party honoring actress Liza Minnelli Monday night, Richardson said he had not been called a liar since his childhood.

Mathias wanted White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig to testify on the matter. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said he doubted the White House would allow Haig to testify but wished it would.

"They initiated the charge that Elliot Richardson lied, that is, he didn't tell the truth...I hope they feel the responsibility to substantiate that very serious charge," Bayh said.

At the same time, Acting Attorney General Robert H. Bork made it part of the official regulations that special prosecutor Leon Jaworski's investigation cannot be limited unless the President first gets a consensus of approval from eight congressional leaders.

The provision had been ommitted by oversight when the regulations first were published. The regulations already include a provision that Jaworski cannot be fired except for "extraordinary improprieties" or unless the President gets the congressional leaders' approval.

Tiburon Plan Will Be Studied

The housing element of the Tiburon General Plan will be discussed tonight at 8 o'clock at city hall by the Tiburon Planning Commission.

Among subjects to be considered are what percentages, if any, of low and moderate income housing there should be in the city.

According to Planning Director Richard G. Arjo, the commission also will review the recently released Strawberry Community Plan, which goes to the Marin County Planning Commission on Nov. 29.

Mountaineer Lost In Shasta Slide

MOUNT SHASTA (AP) — An avalanche swept down the steep slopes of Northern California's 14,162-foot Mount Shasta yesterday, burying five mountaineers. Four survived and the fifth was missing, U.S. Forest Service officials said today.

A search was under way today on the stormy slopes of the ancient volcano for the missing man, who now is presumed dead, said Bob Anderson, Forest Service district ranger at the town of Mount Shasta, 60 miles north of Redding.

The names of all five persons were withheld by the Siskiyou County sheriff's office pending notification of relatives, Anderson said.

The team of climbers was ascending the mountain by way of Avalanche Gulch on the southwest side of the massive peak. The slide caught them at about the 10,000-foot level while the four survivors were resting, the Forest Service said.

The fifth climber had put on his back pack and was starting back up the slope when the slide hit, Anderson said.

At the time, there was a cover of eight inches of fresh powder snow atop an eight-foot snowpack at the Shasta Ski Bowl at about the same elevation on the mountain.

Marin's Shakespeare Festival Will Return Home Next Season

The Marin Shakespeare Festival, which spent its last season in San Francisco, is returning to Marin.

"The festival just was not a success in San Francisco," explained Carole Berg, a member of the theater group's board. "The audiences were poor and reviews were mixed. We should have stayed in Marin, where we were successful."

She said problems arose when the group was forced to compete with professional theater organizations, such as the American Conservatory Theater. "We were judged the same as the professional theater was judged, rather than as a community endeavor," she said.

The Shakespeare festival is currently looking for a Marin location, according to Mrs. Berg.

The group found the Palace of Fine Arts, where it presented plays in San Francisco, a mixed blessing. "The theater had 1,000 seats and that's a lot to fill for anything," Mrs. Berg said. "To have a half empty house was bad for the morale of the actors."

"We belong in Marin County," she added. "We've got all the talent in the world right here."

The festival board held its annual membership meeting last night and reelected James Frush Jr. of Larkspur president.

Other officers chosen were: Joan Lisetor of San Rafael, vice president; Ted Moulton of Berkeley, secretary, and Laura Murray of San Francisco, treasurer. Elected at large members of the group's executive committee were Alvin Schiffrin of Sausalito and Alyce Quiros of San Rafael.

The board agreed to meet weekly with consultants James Dunn, College of Marin drama department head, and Dan Caldwell, head of the Tamalpais High School drama department, to work on plans for the festival's 14th season.

A Victory For Minority Groups

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A judge ruled yesterday that half of the next 236 firemen hired in San Francisco will have to be from minority groups.

U. S. District Judge William T. Sweigert ruled in a suit brought by a coalition of minority groups represented by lawyers for Public Advocates, Inc.

Sweigert said each nonminority fireman who is appointed will have to be followed by appointment of one of the 118 minority applicants who already have passed Civil Service tests.

'Getting Involved' Helps Curb Crime

In Marin Superior Court one day last week, a 17-year-old youth stood up and pointed out two men at the prisoners' table.

"They're the ones," said Eric Newlin. And his identification was enough to have the pair bound over for trial on charges of armed robbery and assault with a deadly weapon.

It was "no big deal" for Eric to identify the pair in court, according to the youth himself. Certainly it was little compared with what he had already done to bring the pair before the bar of justice.

THE STORY started on Oct. 28, when Eric went to Swensen's Ice Cream Parlor in the Bon Air Shopping Center to pick up a friend who worked there. He saw two men emerge from the store, acting suspiciously. When they jumped into a car and sped away, he followed.

Near the Hutchinson Quarry, the getaway car doubled back and cut off young Newlin's return. One of the pair jumped out of the auto and fired two shots at the youth. Both hit him, one in the chest, the other grazing his head.

But young Newlin remembered the license number of the getaway car. Bleeding profusely, he returned to the ice cream parlor, persuaded someone to call police, and gave the office who responded the number.

That license number led to the arrest of Raymond McFarland and James William Frisby for the $350 armed robbery of the ice cream parlor and assault with a deadly weapon on young Newlin.

EVEN ALL THAT, according to Eric, was "no big deal."

Asked why he risked his life by following the pair he suspected were robbers, the youth's reply was, "They just shouldn't get away with stuff like that."

ERIC NEWLIN had a close call because he did what he saw was the right thing.

This 17-year-old youth, a friendly, garrulous young fellow — typical of many of his generation — offers an example for many of his elders who encourage crime by their reticence to "get involved."

He did what he saw was right. If all of us did that, crime rates would drop sharply.

Too many of us complain bitterly about crime, put double locks on our doors, even carry pistols, so fearful are we of the criminal element. But when we see something suspicious, too many of us do nothing — "afraid to get involved."

Police plead constantly for public support and cooperation. They know they cannot curb crime without it. But what they need is not our accolades. "Support Your Local Police" bumper stickers do nothing to reduce the crime rate. Doing what we know to be right does. It can bring criminals to justice.

Raccoons, Again

A study of urban raccoons in Cincinnati in the November issue of Natural History makes interesting reading for raccoon-loving Marinites. We believe the findings in that midwestern city apply here too.

For example, the study found up to five times as many raccoons per given area in the city than in the animal's more natural country habitat. Raccoons made use of man-made structures, such as sewers, dumps, chimneys, attics and garages for dens, as well as the usual trees. The most common cause of death was canine distemper, followed by dogs and autos. Because they made great use of storm drains to travel about, Cincinnati's raccoons were not greatly bothered by cars. Mostly, they lived on garbage and handouts.

Veterans Board Is Case Of Tail Wagging Dog

By EARL G. WATERS

Wing K. Fat, a member of the California Veterans Board, is disturbed by the criticism levelled at that board by the Assembly Committee on Efficiency and Cost Control. Chaired by Assemblyman Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, it was more than just a bit critical. It flat out recommended the board be abolished.

Fat is a restaurant man. His establishment, founded by his father Frank Fat, serves superb food and is a mecca for capitol workers. He is also a fine citizen and a veteran of World War II. As a member (for which he receives no pay) of the veterans board he attends meetings faithfully and gives serious attention to his responsibilities.

THE PROBLEM IS — and this was the crux of Cullen's criticisms — that the board has lacked a full understanding of its duties. The board is charged with determining policy and making management decisions for the department. Its authority is set forth in the law. But it has permitted the civil service employes to run the show. It has been a clear case of the tail wagging the dog.

To his credit, Wing Fat told the other board members they should not be resentful of the Cullen report although they feel it arrived at some erroneous conclusions. "If it wasn't Cullen it would be some other legislator," he said. "What we should be doing is reviewing what we are or are not doing and find out what's wrong with us."

A REVIEW of the history of the board should be helpful. Created as the Veterans Welfare Board, it operated with a small staff.

And it did an outstanding job. It was innovative and courageous. In launching the veterans' home loan program it became the pioneer in the entire arena of home financing.

It was also the Cal Vet program, through the efforts of the board, that introduced mortgage life insurance and later, mortgage disability insurance. Such insurance was unheard of prior to that. No company had ever written that kind of insurance.

So, in a sense, it was unfortuante that World War II brought about an expansion of the program and the establishment of the Department of Veterans Affairs, replete with civil service employes.

THE MOMENTUM for inventiveness dwindled. Instead of continuing to be a leader in home financing, the Cal Vet program became a follower. Its civil service management now looks for guidance to the established financial institutions. It has fallen into adopting the stodgy policies of the banks. It now considers itself a banking operation rather than a program to help veterans by being creative.

The present manager of the farm and home loan program, Jack Johnson, is a career civil servant. He has not had the broadening experience gained in private business. A request to him for a recap of the recommendations he has made for improvements to the program which would make it more helpful to the veterans was made a year ago. It remains unanswered.

In the final analysis the responsibility for this loss of leadership, this failure to continue the brilliant initiative which once marked the efforts of the board, must rest with the board.

"Mirror, mirror on the wall. . ."

"Close those curtains! The neighbors will see how many lights we have on."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

'You Print Only Bad About The President'

We have taken your paper for a number of years now but feel that we can no longer do so.

We believe in freedom of the press, but we also believe in freedom for other people too and when you have nothing but bad to write about the president in every paper, then, we believe that you are taking away his rights, as well as ours and the many other people that believe in him.

As far as we are concerned, the president has done a fine job and we don't feel that we can sit back quiet any longer but are going to start doing whatever we can to help him.

This letter is to indicate my displeasure at the caliber of material supplied to you by the Christian Science Monitor News Service.

Item: One of the early offerings under this service was an article regarding police work (in Bedford Stuyvestant?). I found this article extremely interesting the first time I read it, c. 1952, while a Connecticut resident. It was under the Monitor imprint then, too. Should Marin be delighted at this rare opportunity to receive the Monitor's twenty year old "news" — not even updated?

Item: On Nov. 8, we were treated to another great offering: Cynthia Parson's "Problems Concerning School Lunches." Parson uses 2⅛ column inches to tell us just how bad the "free lunch" provided a welfare child is. It does sound bad, the way she tells it.

Beware of the Parson in the pudding please. Her solution is obviously to plot to wipe clean the welfare rolls. Parson would like to give to all poor children enough money to buy a rich kid type lunch: "cups of chocolate pudding, thermos jugs full of cold apple juice or hot soup, cookies, sandwiches made with lettuce and tomatoes to keep them fresh, candy bars and even potato chips."

By the time the welfare kids work their way through that conglomeration of nonfood and high calories they will drop dead of heart attack and overweight just as fast as the rich kids. Maybe, with luck, all will be so tomato soggy they can't eat it!

Chance Reader Finds 'Country Parson' Confusing

I visited with a colleague from work while apartment hunting in Marin County. She lives in Mill Valley, and introduced me to the Independent Journal.

What generates my writing is the "Country Parson." Is he really a man supposed to be representing Christ's church — or is this some funny cartoon misrepresenting the gospel? It could confuse the already confused or borderline seekers and social churchgoers with its double standard church memberships.

Is he some apostate or "uncalled" wordly guy knocking out his line of untruths in the guise of "wordly wisdom" to make his living?

This character bugs me. I'd drive a number of miles (gas permitting) and for an hour each direction to be fed on God's word. But I'd stay home and watch TV (which I don't find very profitable) rather than cross the street to hear this kind of preaching.

Nobody Puts Anything Away In The Right Place Around Here

WASHINGTON — One of the things the Nixon administration was noted for before Watergate was its neatness. It's hard to believe, on the basis of recent revelations, that the president has run one of the sloppiest White Houses of anyone in our history. Records get lots. Tapes don't exist. Notes are misplaced.

I can just see the president buzzing his private secretary, Rose Mary Woods.

"Rose Mary, get me that tough note Brezhnev sent me during the Mideast crisis."

"Yessir, Mr. President."

TWENTY MINUTES later: "The note seems to be missing, Mr. President. There's nothing in the Brezhnev folder except a telegram congratulating Princess Anne on her wedding."

"Did you look in the Princess Anne folder?"

"Yes, I did, and there is nothing in her folder except John Mitchell's resignation as attorney general."

"Good grief, I have to get a copy of the Soviet note. Did you look in my folder?"

"Yes, I did, Mr. President. The only thing in your folder is your tough note to Brezhnev."

"Well, at least that's something. Let me see it."

"Here it is, Mr. President."

"THIS ISN'T the tough note I sent Brezhnev. It's a summary of Kissinger's talks with Golda Meir."

"Oops. Sorry about that. It was written on a shopping bag, so it was hard to decipher."

"Perhaps we could get out the tapes of my conversations with Soviet Ambassador Dobrynin. I think he summed up the Brezhnev remarks."

"I'll call the Secret Service and have them sent up right away."

A HALF-HOUR later: "Mr. President, did you speak to Mr. Dobrynin on Oct. 24 or 25?"

"Why do you ask?"

"Because the tapes marked 'Conversation with Dobrynin Part I' seem to be a telephone call you made to Bebe Rebozo."

"Did you check the Bebe Rebozo tapes?"

"Yes, and they turned out to be a conversation you had with Emperor Haile Selassie when you were vice president."

"Dammit, Rose Mary, we seem to be running a loose ship around here. Get me the tapes of my conversation with Mao Tse-tung."

"Bob Haldeman took them home with him last June."

"Well, didn't he bring them back?"

"He can't remember."

"Okay, forget the tapes. Give me the notes I dictated after my meeting with the congressional leaders on the energy crisis."

"Here they are, Mr. President."

"HOLD IT! These aren't my notes on the energy crisis. They're the plays I worked out for the Washington Redskins in last year's Super Bowl game."

"Mr. President, if you don't like the way I'm doing my work, I'll be very happy to resign."

"Now, Rose Mary, stop crying. I think you're doing a wonderful job. It's just that every once in a while I can't seem to find something I'm looking for."

"You know this is not the easiest job in the world."

"Rose Mary, Rose Mary! Pat and I think the world of you. Now you just go back to your desk and forget all about the tough note Brezhnev sent me. It probably wasn't important anyway."

U.S. Has Survived Without President Able To Govern

As recently as the second decade of this century, at the crucial end of World War I, the United States virtually did without a president for over a year. Policy suffered. Some historic decisions were made differently than might otherwise have been the case. But the nation survived.

All this happened during the incapacity of Woodrow Wilson, from Oct. 4, 1919, to March 4, 1921. During the first months of that period, a devoted Mrs. Wilson and the president's physician, Adm. Cary Grayson, took most of the decisions of the presidency, even guiding Mr. Wilson's hand in necessary signatures. They acted, says historian Samuel Eliot Morison, as an informal council of regency.

It has been argued that had President Wilson been more nearly himself, he would have had both the strength and the wisdom to negotiate the concessions necessary to bring Senate approval of United States membership in the League of Nations. This is debatable, of course, but it is not fanciful. How much world history might have been changed by active American participation in the peacemaking also is debatable, and it is a poignant thought.

Other aspects of American history might have been different, too. An active Woodrow Wilson would not have permitted his attorney general, A. Mitchell Palmer, to carry out the widespread violations of civil liberty in his anti-red and anti-foreign crusades. The thousands of arrests and hundreds of deportations left deep scars. Unnecessary hate was stirred in the national consciousness. The later excesses of the Ku Klux Klan were partially the result. During the same period, there were vicious race riots in the north, formented by the hate merchants.

EVEN BEFORE THE 25TH amendment to the Constitution was passed, making explicit provision for replacement of an incapacitated president or vice president, there were definite provisions that a vice president should take over, but no stipulation as to who should declare the incapacity. Mrs. Wilson and the president's powerful secretary, Joseph Tumulty, forcefully opposed any transfer of duties to Vice President Thomas R. Marshall. They prevailed.

Many will remember that during the incapacities of President Eisenhower, duties of state were carried on effectively by Vice President Nixon, and by the whole structure of executive government without any formal assumption of power.

These references to two 20th century experiences with an incapacitated president do not suggest that the nation could or should accept the temporary suspension of the presidential function.

With every passing year, the need for a capable and responsible executive hand is apparent. The 25th amendment, which even now is recognized as only a partial solution by many of its sponsors, goes a long way to meet the need.

Nor is it suggested that President Nixon, under the turmoil known as Watergate, is incapable of strong government. His administration, through the work of his secretary of state, has just brought about a great diplomatic achievement in the Middle East. The energy crisis, though approached very belatedly, is marked by vigorous actions. Congress, however stirred by the turmoil, gives the president huge majorities when his proposals seem to meet the national need.

YET WITH ALL the manifest value of a strong executive, it is also clear that strength comes not only from the presidential office but from the whole structure of the executive branch.

Strong heads of department are needed. They must be given authority. Great decisions must not always have to come back to the Oval Office. Still less need they be controlled by lesser White House officials. Coordination, yes. Heavy-handed control, no.

Dispersion and sharing of power is one way to prevent its abuse, not just between the federal government and the states and cities, but within the executive branch itself. The president will derive strength from the abilities and character of those he has appointed to office and trusted with responsibility.

It is incredible to remember the stresses American government has been able to survive.

Speaker Albert Has Reason To Doubt Impeachment Vote

WASHINGTON — A small man, he sits rather slumped down in the big chair behind his big desk. Speaker Carl Albert in this pause, this interval of uncertainty, will be the next President of the United States should the office for any reason be vacated before confirmation of Rep. Gerald Ford as vice president.

It is a prospect that dismays him, since he knows with the modesty of a man who understands his own limitations what an ordeal it would be for a Democrat to assume the presidency following the Nixon landslide of a year ago. His goal is to complete the confirmation of Representative Ford as soon as possible. He believes this will be accomplished with the House acting after the Senate by Dec. 4 or 5.

I have achieved, he says, all the honors I had aspired to. As speaker of the House of Representatives he steers with a gentler rein than some of his predecessors. Persuasion rather than coercion is his chief resource in presiding over an often-unruly body of 435 members with a Democratic majority of 48.

YET THERE IS GOOD reason to believe that his reading of the current trends in this unwieldy body is close to the mark. What he says on crucial matters concerning the future of the presidency and therefore the future of the nation must therefore be given particular weight.

1. Speaker Albert does not believe that the House will vote the impeachment of President Nixon.

2. The proof essential to vote a resolution of impeachment for high crims and misdemeanors is not now in sight; evidence,, yes, in plenty, but not proof.

3. The president will not in foreseeable future resign his office.

HAVING SERVED in the House for more than a quarter of a century, Albert accepts the rather cumbersome machinery now turning over to resolve the impasse. The House Judiciary Committee, headed by Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., was charged by the speaker wih conducting an inquiry following a half-dozen resolutions calling for the impeachment of the president. The alternative would have been a select committee named by the speaker after consultation with Democratic and Republican leaders in the House.

The Rodino committee is also charged with passing on the confirmation of Ford and on the issue of a special Watergate prosecutor to be chosen by the district court and responsible court and the grand jury. This is a large order, and with the unwieldy committee of 38 lawyers it is a difficult assignment to avoid a narrowly partisan approach to what should be matters transcending partisanship.

On the question of the right of the committee to issue subpoenas in pursuing the impeachment inquiry, the vote was on strictly party lines. The Republicans were demanding the right to pass on individual subpoenas that the staff with the approval of the chairman would want to issue.

THIS IS A FORECAST of the future. Strictly on party lines, impeachment would divide not only the Congress but the nation. This is one reason Albert believes that, short of some new and even more startling disclosure, the House will not vote an impeachment resolution and it is unlikely the committee will recommend such a resolution.

On one position the mild mannered speaker is adamant. There will, he says, be no adjournment of the House until Gerry Ford is confirmed. About the pace, which has always been leisurely, there is apparently little that can be done.

Albert was given the American Heart Association award for the "heart recovery man of the year" following a massive heart attack. That is one award he would not like to receive, Nixon said in officiating at the ceremony. Albert says he has had no recurrence of heart trouble since the attack. After all, Lyndon Johnson had a massive heart attack in 1955 and came back to be a strenuous president. But his is not in the Albert purview. He is continuing the days until the threat of the highest office no longer hangs over him.

Squaring The Boundaries Provides Headache For Novato Manager

Novato City Mgr. Charles A. Brown has been working long toward squaring away the city boundaries.

In his latest effort, Brown appeared last week before a state Senate committee hearing on an annexation reform bill.

Brown testified that developed fringe areas adjacent to cities cause a financial drain upon cities and result in duplication of services by cities and counties.

He spoke from experience, for there are several peninsulas of unincorporated territory extending into Novato and an "island" of county land surrounded by the city.

Brown believes as most city managers do, that the rules should be loosened to make it easier for cities to annex adjacent land, but things that "annexation reform is still a long way in the future."

BROWN REPORTED that when Novato was incorporated in 1960 it consisted of 11 square miles and it has since annexed 12 square miles, but its sphere of influence is 75 square miles.

The city population has grown from 17,800 to 35,300, while the population in the sphere of influence outside the city has grown from 3,800 to 8,600, he said.

He listed as "developed areas outside the city limits but inside the sphere of influence."

Loma Verde-Ignacio, 250 acres and 2,050 population; Bel Marin Keys, 250 and 1,300; Black Point, 1,200 and 950; Atherton Avenue, 150 and 400; Devonshire, 75 and 500; Pleasant Valley, 50 and 500; Wild Horse Valley, 250 and 350; West Novato, 200 and 350; Indian Valley, 650 and 950; and "five islands under 50 acres in size," 80 acres and 500 population.

Brown believes that residents of adjacent urbanized areas are benefitting from city services, such as streets, but aren't being taxed for them, in effect being subsidized by city property owners.

The outlying property owners, resisting annexation, naturally don't want to pay any more taxes unless they are sure they will receive more services.

Unfortunately for the city, it doesn't have the leverage of fire protection, a key service, since the Novato Fire Protection District, whose boundaries extend beyond the city limits, offers such protection to adjacent areas.

A FEW NOVATO RESIDENTS were startled recently when they received notice they could appeal a decision to grant Kenneth Wilson of 46 Plata Court a permit to remove branches from a dead tree on his property, under the city's heritage tree ordinance.

One resident called the Independent-Journal and asked what local government was coming to when cutting a dead tree on private property was subject to appeal.

Junior planner James McCulloch, who sent out the notice, explained that the heritage tree ordinance, governing the cutting or removal of heritage trees, doesn't specify "dead or alive."

Under the circumstances, he said, he had no alternative but to send out the notices as required by the ordinance.

American Settlement In Israel To Be Discussed

"Should Americans Settle in Israel?" will be discussed by Yehuda Kesten, a writer for Israel's morning newspaper, in the first of a series of three speakers for the Marin Jewish Community Center's Symposium on Israel.

Kesten will talk at 8 p.m. Nov. 29 at the community center at 200 North San Pedro Road, Santa Venetia.

He is a science and education editorial writer for Ha'aretz, who has been on assignment at the Israel Allyah Center in San Francisco since the summer of 1972.

Kesten believes that the rapid growth of the Jewish population in Israel through immigration is essential for the country's survival and advancement.

Next speaker in the free series will be Roland Hassun, an Egyptian Jew, who will discuss the "U.S. and USSR Interest in the Middle East" on Dec. 6. The final speaker will be Dr. Martin Primack, an economics professor at San Jose State College, who will talk about "Oil in the Middle East" on Dec. 13. All of the talks will start at 8 p.m.

Fund Authority Role Explained

CHICAGO (UPI) — Caspar W. Weinberger, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said yesterday his proposed "forward funding authority" would give states advance information on how much federal education funding to expect.

Weinberger, in a speech to Illinois education officials, said states would be informed a year early how much federal money would be available and could plan accordingly.

Currently states plan their budgets on the basis of federal aid received the previous year and without any real idea how much they will actually receive.

Weinberger said he will also seek President Nixon's approval of a 1974 supplemental appropriation for grant programs.

Appalachian Hikers

Two Army privates, Pedro Villareal and William Mason, are attempting to hike the entire length of the famed Appalachian Trail. The men began hiking in September. Supplied by helicopter along the route, they hope to finish before Christmas. Fewer than 100 people have walked the entire length of the trail, which was created in 1936. It stretches from Mount Katahdin, the highest point in the state of Maine, to Mount Oglethorpe in northern Georgia. Along the way, the trail passes through parts of 14 states, 8 national forests, and 2 national parks. There are camp sites and shelter cabins every 10 to 20 miles along the route.

Synanon Files A $25 Million Suit

Synanon Foundation and its founder, Charles E. Dederich, have filed a $25 million suit against the Hearst Corp., its officers and employees, charging a Watergate-style conspiracy worked to steal Synanon information for use in discrediting the foundation.

The suit was filed Nov. 8 in San Francisco Superior Court.

Synanon claims in the 16-page suit that William Randolph Hearst Jr., Randolph Apperson Hearst, The Hearst Corp., Examiner reporter Ed Montgomery, former Synanon official George G. Faucette and others conspired to harm the foundation.

The conspiracy included "illegally procuring Synanon records and tapes of Synanon Games, inducing the theft of Synanon's property; attempting to dissuade donors, contributors and potential contributors from supporting Synanon by contacting them and telling false and malicious stories," and printing stories in the Examiner that Synanon contends are libelous.

Among the harm done, the suit claims, was persuasion of writers to stop work on a pro-Synanon article intended for publication in the Wall Street Journal, by giving them "two stolen tapes."

The suit claims that the tapes were taken by a Joseph E. Chico last Dec. 15, and that other persons stole "a large number" of tape recordings of confidential and private Synanon Games and meetings from Dederich's office at Marshal.

Dan L. Garrett Jr., Synanon's attorney, said the suit resulted from the Hearst Corp. reaction to a $32 million libel suit Synanon, Dederich and Dan Sorkin of the foundation filed Oct. 12, 1972. That suit resulted from two articles published in the Examiner in January 1972, Garrett said.

Chico, accused in the suit last week, is a former Synanon resident at the Marshal facility; Foucette was connected with Synanon in Oakland until the Hearst organization hired them as investigators and paid for their attorneys who have filed lawsuits against Synanon in San Francisco and Marin courts, the suit claims.

Five Cheetah Cubs Pass Critical Period

Anchovy Catch Is Up This Year

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Commercial anchovy fishermen in California this year landed nearly three times the amount they brought in last year for a total of 46,305 tons.

The state Department of Fish and Game yesterday said the seasonal total included 10,250 tons from the northern part of the state, where the quota this year was 15,000 tons. The remaining 36,055 tons came from the south where the quota was 100,000 tons, the department said.

The department also said the price for anchovies remained at $47.50 per ton.

Union, GM In Accord On Contract

DETROIT (UPI) — Negotiators for General Motors and the United Auto Workers, with a new three-year national contract agreement behind them, today turned their attention to resolving disputes at 116 locals to avoid the possibility of production-crippling work stoppages.

The automaker, the nation's largest, and the union, representing 420,000 GM workers, reached tentative agreement yesterday on the new contract 90 minutes before a national strike deadline. The UAW immediately canceled 20 scheduled "ministrikes" at selected GM installations.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock, who led this year's round of auto talks with Chrysler and Ford earlier, said the tentative agreement with GM paralleled the settlements with the other two of the "Big Three" automakers "in a substantial measure."

Woodcock termed the peaceful conclusion of negotiations which began July 16 a "tremendous contribution to the economy of our country at a time when we are in a most uncertain situation."

Only 31 of 147 UAW locals at GM's 110 U.S. plants have reached settlements on local issues. Woodcock said strike deadlines still could be set, if needed, to settle the local plant disputes.

Only one facility was shut yesterday when workers at the Framingham, Mass., assembly plant jumped the gun and halted production before hearing of the tentative settlement.

George B. Morris Jr., GM vice-president for industrial relations, said GM was "very pleased" with "a very good contract."

Specifics of the agreement were not revealed pending a Nov. 27 meeting here of the 400-member UAW-GM Council.

The Chrysler and Ford pacts provided for three annual 3 per cent wage increases, with an additional 12 cents an hour in the first year; an improved cost-of-living clause; a company-paid dental plan, and pension and insurance improvements.

White House Granted Week's Delay On Watergate Material

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House, pleading the illness of one of its lawyers, has been granted a week's delay in surrendering the first of President Nixon's subpoenaed Watergate material.

Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica granted the delay yesterday shortly after the Senate approved legislation extending the life of the Watergate grand jury — the body which eventually will receive Nixon's Watergate material.

A spokesman for Sirica said the White House had asked for the delay in submitting the material — a "written descriptive analysis and index" of the subpoenaed material — scheduled to be submitted today under a timetable anounced last week by Sirica, because of the illness of lawyer Samuel J. Powers, who is hospitalized with pneumonia in Miami.

"They said they needed time to finish the job," an aide to Sirica said.

In the Senate, the decision to extend the life of the grand jury — reported anxious to complete their work — was passed and sent to the White House on a voice vote and without any opposition.

The grand jury was due to complete its 18 month tenure on Dec. 5.

Nixon has 10 days, not including Sundays, to decide whether to sign the legislation.

In other Watergate-related developments:

The Senate Judiciary decided to go into executive session today to consider recalling former Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson to clarify conflicting reports of his role in the Oct. 20 firing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

House Judiciary subcommittee has voted to give the U.S. District Court jurisdiction in a Senate Watergate committee suit seeking the White House tapes. Sirica, in an earlier decision on the suit, ruled he did not have jurisdiction to decide whether the committee should be able to subpoena the tapes from the White House. The full Senate has already passed the legislation.

Police Computer Not Infallible

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The police computer is not infallible.

That's the word from Police Chief Donald M. Scott who ordered his officers yesterday to listen to motorists who claim the police department's computer could make a mistake.

Scott said the computer in the Central Warrant Bureau could be way behind in tabulating when a citizen pays his traffic fine.

So, the chief said, when patrolmen check a driver's record by radio and the bureau shows an outstanding warrant, the policemen should listen to him if he says he has paid the fine.

The police department hasbeen the target of several law suits as a result of erroneous computer readouts on traffic warrants.

Stand On Aerosol Spray Safety May Be Changed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission is considering whether to change its stand on aerosol spray adhesives, which it removed from the market two months ago after a birth defects scare.

Commission Chairman Richard O. Simpson said his agency has received two new studies on the subject and a restudy by the man who first drew attention to the problem, Dr. J. Rodman Seely of the University of Oklahoma.

He said, however, the issue is a "very complicated question," and the new studies do not agree on whether there is a correlation between use of the sprays and chromosomal damage or birth defects.

"It depends on how you interpret the results," Simpson added.

Simpson said yesterday the Seely study involved a rereading of his earlier findings, and "he came out with much the same conclusions." Animal studies, he added, have showed no chromosomal damage, but there has been toxicity involving eye and nose problems.

"All we could do then and all we could do now is to make a rational decision based on the facts," Simpson said, adding that he realized the commission might be accused of having jumped too fast in its initial decision if it reverses it now. He said the agency's first duty, however, is to protect the public.

In August the federal commission banned the sale of 13 aerosol spray adhesives manufactured by Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. and by the Borden Co. The sprays have been used commercially, and in the home for hobby purposes.

Marin Film Chosen For National Award

"Bay Tidelands" first of a series of three 15-minute "Tripping with Terwilliger," films received the Golden Eagle award at the Council on International Nontheatrical Events 16th annual awards presentation ceremonies last week in Washington, D.C.

The award was accepted by Joan Linn Bekins of Belvedere, executive producer and technical director of the film series.

The film features Mill Valley naturalist Elizabeth Terwilliger. Also in the film are Joan Bekins' husband, Donald, and their young daughter.

Director of the films, a year-long project, was William Cohen. The project was underwritten through an educational grant to Marin Audubon Society by Standard Oil Co. of California. Standard Oil distributes the 1,200 prints of the film to schools on a free loan basis in nine Western states. The films are designed for kindergarten through sixth grade levels and illustrate teaching techniques that introduce youngsters to the out of doors.

In the film a brother and sister explore Mrs. Terwilliger's world in a salt water marsh, the shore and tidelands.

It was chosen for the award from 84 films entered in the educational category and will be shown in film festivals in the United States and exhibits abroad.

Breast Cancer Concerns All Women

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) —The subject today is one which concerns every woman—sometimes to a degree beyond which it should.

The subject: breast cancer.

As a Gallup Poll report released today by the American Cancer Society (ACS) puts it, "Breast cancer is so much a major medical concern of American women that most grossly over-estimate its prevalence."

The poll, first of its kind, states that, "Undoubtedly, a major reason for this saliency of concern...is the fact that 77 per cent of all women (surveyed) know someone personally who has had breast cancer and 41 per cent know three or more.

"...Compounding this exaggerated idea of the prevalence of breast cancer is the widespread belief that most breast lumps are cancerous. Thirty-eight per cent of all women said that half or more of all breast lumps are cancerous."

"GIVEN THESE misconceptions...fear and panic regarding any breast lump is (sic) to be expected," the report continued. "One typical reaction to fear and panic is avoidance. Thus, 46 per cent of all women said they feel having monthly breast examinations would make them worry when it wasn't necessary."

The Gallup study prepared for the ACS was released Thursday during the society's 60th annual meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Dr. Irving Crespi, vice president of the Gallup organization, summarized the significant data.

At the same time, Dr. Arthur G. James, ACS president, and Dr. Frank Rauscher, director of the National Cancer Institute, announced nine new breast cancer demonstration projects to be opened in various parts of the country, bringing to 20 the number efforting toward earlier detection of the disease.

THE ACS is in no way downgrading the danger from breast cancer, despite some facts brought out by the Gallup study. It is the number one form of the disease affecting women. The society estimates there will be 90,000 new cases and 33,000 deaths in 1974.

But, the ACS reminds, the rate of cure in early diagnosis is 85 to 90 per cent. It drops to a 45 to 50 per cent survival rate when the cancer has moved into the lymph areas.

The 10-page Gallup study—formally titled "Women's Attitudes Regarding Breast Cancer" —resulted from a national sampling of 1,007 women 18 years and older, each interviewed personally for an average of an hour. Prior to the individual talks, a series of tape-recorded group discussions was held as a means of developing the formal questionnaire.

Early in the interview, before any mention had been made of breast cancer, when asked to name the two or three most serious medical problems facing women, 43 per cent mentioned cancer first.

ANOTHER 13 per cent referred specifically to breast cancer and 6 per cent to uterine or cervical cancer.

No other health problem was named first by comparable percentages.

Pollsters found that, counteracting fear and pessimism, there was a moderate optimism about therapy. Some 61 per cent expressed at least some optimism. Also, 74 per cent of all women think "a great deal" of progress has been made over the past 20 years in early diagnosis and 69 per cent in cure.

And 8 of 10 women who knew someone who had the disease said that at least one of them they knew had been "saved."

Said the report, "If optimism about survival and progress in diagnosis...can be effectively linked to a realistic understanding about incidence, this could help motivate women to schedule breast examinations more frequently than they have up to now."

But the report said there is "widespread ignorance and confusion about the causes...a majority of 62 per cent is under the misapprehension that a blow or injury to the breast can cause (the disease)... on the other hand only 41 per cent realize that if someone else in her family has had breast cancer this increases the chances that she, herself, might develop one."

"ALSO, DESPITE the lack of definitive scientific evidence on these points," it continued, "43 per cent believe that use of birth control pills increase the chances of developing (cancer) . . . 25 per cent that breast feeding decrease these chances."

Forty per cent did not realize that increasing age makes for an increasing chance of developing breast cancer.

The report concluded also that half of the adult female population does not have annual breast examinations by a physician and although 77 per cent of all women have heard of breast self-examination, almost three out of 10 have never practiced it. And a minority has not done-self examination on the recommended monthly basis.

Questions Of Premarital Sex Drew Most Parental Comment

DEAR READERS:

Further analyzing computer data on our recent survey "For Parents Only" on teen-age mores of the present day, it is interesting to note that of the 35 questions we asked — inviting comment as well as simply "yes" or "no" answers — more respondents took the time to express their views on premarital sex than almost any other question.

A Montana man, for instance, opined, "I hope my daughter won't have intercourse because everybody is doing it to be popular. I would hope, too, that she would be able to resist impulsive passion. But if she entered a mature, responsible affair, I wouldn't consider it the worst thing in the world. What I abhor is the current rather adolescent fixation on sex as a mechanical act for individual pleasure. I've no quarrel with healthy, human sexuality affirmed in loving relationships."

A portion of "Yes, my ideas on sex have changed" voters were simply resigned. ("Premarital sex freedom is here, why fight a losing battle?") but others wrote:

"I now agree: sex with love and commitment needn't wait till the wedding night. There are more important things than being a virgin — or marrying your daughter off as one."

"Insistence on virginity pushed my oldest girl into a bad marriage that ended in divorce. My new slogan: get your mistakes over before marriage."

"I'm glad my children won't suffer the guilt I felt over 'giving in' before the wedding. It almost ruined our marriage — we 'accused' each other every time we had a fight — before we reconsidered those Puritanical attitudes handed down by our parents, and realized they were largely ridiculous."

"Dishonesty, 'using' other people, cruelty, war, many things are worse than unmarried sex, and I'm glad the younger generation is saying it!"

"My daughters, ages 14 and 16, have been fitted with IUDs."

"I still feel premarital intercourse is psychologically damaging, and it's safer to wait but, after discussing our viewpoint with our older teens, we have told them the decision is theirs. We don't condemn or moralize."

"Hopefully, we have instilled good values in our children so that they'll make the right choices, even though they might not be what we would have made, back then."

"It's more important showing my daughter she need not be constricted by her sex — that she is man's equal — than that she should suppress her sexuality."

"To marry for sex alone is foolish and disastrous. You must be best friends, and that is much easier if you can communicate mentally and physically."

Thousands of respondents, of course, were in complete disagreement with the above views, were adamant, in fact, that "marriage first" was the only answer.

Tomorrow we shall give them "equal time." — HELEN AND SUE

SURVEY RESPONSES SHOW

Marin Parents Come Close To Statistics On Virginity

Editor's note: Columnist Helen Bottel did this special analysis of I-J reader responses to her nationwide reader survey of parents' attitudes teen-agers conducted in her column, Generation Rap.

By HELEN BOTTEL

As in other sections, Marin parents paid lip service to equality of the sexes (88 per cent answered "No" to "Do you believe in the double standard?") but contradicted themselves in condoning "experience" for their sons while fearing it for their daughters.

One honest Mill Valley resident wrote, "I walked right into your trap, didn't I? I marked 'Yes' to the question, 'Do you want your daughter to remain virgin until she marries?' and 'No' to 'How about your son?' Then later on, I said, I didn't believe in the double standard.

"Well, I don't believe in the double standard, as applies to work, pay, opportunities — even sex (for someone outside the family), but I still have an ingrained parents' instinct to protect my little girl! No matter that common sense tells me the days of seducer-tempting-innocent are over... that girls can jolly well take care of themselves... that they're often more aggressive than males — when it comes to my daughter, I want her safe, and that means marriage! As for my 21-year-old son, frankly I'd worry if I thought he was shying away from sex.

"SO I'M a hypocrite, but aren't most members of my generatin? I lost my virginity before I was 20, but I expect my 17-year-old daughter to keep hers. And if she doesn't I hope she won't tell me! I make sure she knows about birth control, but if she needs it, I'd rather she goes to Planned Parenthood, because if she asked me for personal help via our own doctor, I'd be an accomplice.

"I'm acting as my mother did with me, pretending "if you don't look, it won't happen' or anyway, 'what you don't know about won't hurt you'... And I wonder if our daughter will react likewise with her children.

"When it comes to your own, even though you know values have changed and you mainly applaud the change, those century-old feelings about female chastity are hard to ignore."

Or, as another writer put it, "I'd guess 80 per cent of young people under 20 have had sex, but please, God, not my girl!"

His assessment of teen-age non-virginity was higher than that of many parents. The national guess averaged 72 per cent, and Independent-Journal readers' tally was near the lowest in the country. They estimated 45 per cent of today's youth were not sexually experienced by the time they reached age 20.

This last statistic gave Sue (Bottel) and me pause, and we wondered initially whether our figures could be wrong: Marin County answers pegged its residents as broadminded; Over three-fourths of respondents were either accepting of, or resigned to, premarital sex. Yet here they were, believing almost half of the single (older) teen population were virgin... while their more conservative peers strongly suspected three-fourths of them were not!

IN ANALYZING computer data which at first glance seemed out of character with the California profile, we arrived at a possible explanation:

When parents admit major attitude changes, this usually indicates open-mindedness, the ability to discuss without dictating. Families who talk together about the New Morality often reassure one another, for communication eliminates fear of the unknown.

If a teen can say without threat of lectures, "Look, Mom, I don't think unwed sex, with love, is wrong, but I'll be darn sure it's love before I jump into bed," then Mom's mind is eased — her daughter isn't out there sampling. Likewise, parents who listen without condemning are often included in the candid conversations of their childrens' friends, and they discover again that many are waiting for more maturity.

Also, frank, non-judgmental exchanges with younger teenagers can guide them away from early and unwise sexual encounters. These exchanges reassure parents too. All in all, the ability to communicate brings "liberals" and their children closer together, lets them form a truer picture of teen life.

AND TRUER it is, according to recent formal studies. In the 1973 Sorensen Report on Adolescent Sexuality in Contemporary America, 48 per cent of under-20-year-olds revealed they were still virgin. Our findings in Generation Rap's upcoming Teen Survey show about the same per centages. Yet Marin County, with its relaxed attitudes on sex, was one of the few spots not to overshoot these figures. Several communities in southern and midwestern United States set teen virginity at a dismal 15 per cent — and these spawned the same parents who insisted their daughters would "damn well stay pure or else!"

Sue and I finally came to a far-from-new conclusion: conservatism breeds distrust — of all but your own. Or could it be that parents overly fearful of teen promiscuity seek proof that their fears are justified — and find it in gossip and lurid exposes?

It is interesting, though not surprising, to note that Independent-Journal surveyees were the only ones in the country who estimated other teens' virginity within two percentage points of their own children's.

NEXT: The New Morality.

WITH A LITTLE help from old friends: This handsome Penthouse dining ensemble is truly an updated version of some classic Colonial concepts. The trestle-based table has merely been interpreted in chrome and glass; the cane-backed chairs bow to modern technology through their plastic nature.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

Modern Furniture Is Often Inspired By Older Designs

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
(Distributed by General Features Corp.)

It's so easy to look at the chrome and glass dining ensemble illustrated today and say, "Oh, modern." With that you can reject or accept it according to your current attitudes on design. But a second glance might clarify a few facts about the "age" or inspiration of the pieces.

The group is actually a modern-day interpretation of some of our classic Colonial furniture. The Penthouse table is a case in point. Trestle bases were common in 17th Century America and Canada. But a trestle is merely a form of support for a big, flat work surface. Bridge supports are called trestles, too. So in the table shown today, the supports for the smoke-color glass top are trestles of polished chrome. All the designers did was translate the idea of the trestle from one material to another material — wood to chrome. And instead of a heavy, solid wood top they chose plate glass — today's abundant see-through material.

What about the chairs? Well, cane and rush were popular materials for chair seats in those settling days. Pliable reeds and canes could be woven into good supportive panels for seat and back positions.

Today's use of cane is somewhat different, since the cane in this case is actually a plastic material that simulates the woven cane of our forebears. It has great durability and is inset into laminated back supports set in polished chrome frames. Instead of cane seating there is a thick cushion upholstered in handsome woven fabric.

That same fabric has been used in an innovative way on the table base. A panel of it has been stretched between the I-shaped trestle bases. It adds a soft touch to a very pure design.

Other modern concepts have their roots in the past. The wall-hung storage system actually replaces the supersized hutch of former periods. Many of the original hutch cabinets included sink basins (and before the advent of piped-in water, that was a true luxury). Now we refer to them as dry sinks and load them with potted plants. But time was when a dry sink was the only sink.

Animals inspired furniture design, too. For example, the ball and claw foot on furniture, the hoof-shaped foot on tables, the goose-neck arm on chairs. There are probably dozens more.

All of this is reminding us that the true innovators are great observers. They put what they see and observe to work — we just look.

MUSIC REVIEW

Mezzo Presents Smooth Recital

By VERA M. OLMSTED

Last night's recital by aspiring mezzo-soprano Marvellee Cariaga contained an unusual mixed-bag of works ranging from traditional repertoire to popular songs which showed off the versatility of her large and dramatic voice.

This was the second program of the year presented by the Marin Concert Association in the Veterans' Memorial Auditorium and attracted a comfortably large number of its subscription audience.

Miss Cariaga, who sang in both "Boris Godunov" and "Elektra" with the San Francisco Opera Company this year, has a big, glowing tone, pleasing in both the upper and lower registers. She has great stage presence and a warm and relaxed manner which was apparent during the occasional remarks she made to the audience about the music.

The program was rather curious in that the first half contained works by Handel, Schubert and Saint-Saens, while the second half featured American composers including Pete Seeger and Richard Rodgers. That's what's known as covering all your bases.

Six of Franz Schubert's best known songs were tastefully done with careful phrasing and control of the dynamics. The balance of interest between voice and piano, played with intelligence by Daniel Cariaga, was beautifully handled by both performers.

"Magda's Aria" from "The Consul" by Gian Carlo Menotti is a dramatic cry of anguish by a distraught woman. Miss Cariaga's enunciation was clear enough to be able to understand every word. Light relief was provided by three short works from Samuel Barber's "Hermit Songs," originally written for Leontyne Price and based on texts translated from the Irish.

Most interesting was a piece by experimental composer John Cage titled "The Wonderful Widow of Eighteen Springs," which called for pianist Cariaga to close the piano keyboard and accompany the voice with a rhythmic pattern created by tapping, slapping and knocking on the wood of the piano while the vocal melody stayed within the range of a fifth.

A rousing "Climb Ev'ry Mountain" from "The Sound of Music" led to two encores which underlined the split personality of the evening's programming — the "Seguidilla" from Bizet's "Carmen" and "Danny Boy." The latter was very effective because of Miss Cariaga's beautifully controlled pianissimo.

Daniel Cariaga deserves the highest plaudits for his far-above average accompanying throughout the evening. He never thundered even in the loudest passages, and the nuances and subtleties of each song were carefully brought out.

The next guest artists presented by the Marin Chamber Association will be the Romero Quartet on Jan. 7.

College To Give 'Volpone' Nov. 30; 12 More Performances

Ben Johson's "Volpone," presented by the College of Marin theater arts department will open Nov. 30 and run for 13 performances.

The play, which focuses on human excesses, is to be directed by Roger Ellis, guest director at the college for the winter semester.

Performances will be Nov. 30 and Dec. 1, 2, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 12, 13, 14, 15 and 16. All are at 8 p.m. in Theater III at San Francisco Theological Seminary.

Members of the cast are: Richard Bennett, Cece Berliner, Robert Burns, Chris Hammond, Patrick Linington, Chris Murphy and David Webb, all of Mill Valley.

Michael Dalton, Carol Kravetz, Pagan Neil, L. C. Owen and Steve Rabley, all of San Anselmo.

Abby Golman, Renee Losk, Christiane McKenna and Carol Schoonmaker, all of San Rafael; Lisa Britt, Shelly Lipkin and Mark Schwarz of Ross;

Jeffrey Josephson, Todd Norris and Tim Shippey of Larkspur, Cathy Carter and David Silverman of Greenbrae, Robert Herrmann of Kentfield, Laura Smyth of Fairfax, Isabelle Simoneau of Tiburon, Cathy Cahn of Novato, and Elsie Ritchie of Berkeley.

Library Junior Section Will Be Moved Upstairs

The junior section of the San Rafael Library will be moved upstairs next month, adjoining the adult section of the library.

The move, proposed by librarian Vivian Smith, was approved unanimously last night by the San Rafael Library Board. It involves moving librarians' offices from the upper floor to the portion now occupied by the junior section, which serves children in fifth through eighth grades.

Mrs. Smith said it will be necessary to close the library for two days to make the move. Dec. 12 and 13 were set tentatively for the closing. Minor structural changes involved will be done by city employees.

Mrs. Smith reported that the San Rafael Library Association, now headed by Clarice Kramer, is setting up a book service at the Whistlestop senior citizens' center, to provide books there from the city library.

Trustees discussed the possibility of relocation of the library, as suggested at a recent city council meeting, but took no action awaiting a report on possible sites from Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner.

Next meeting was set for Dec. 10, with the board voting to return to the second Monday of each month as a regular meeting date. All trustees were present.

Prince Charles Receives Dues

LAUNCESTON, England (UPI) — Prince Charles received, among other oddities, two greyhounds, a pound of pepper, a hunting bow, gilt spurs and a load of firewood yesterday.

They were presented to him, as his due as the Duke of Cornwall, by his duchy tenants.

The heir to the British throne also received a pound of herbs, a grey cloak, 100 old shillings, a giant salmon spear and a pair of giant gloves.

The ceremonial handing over of tenants' dues — last held 37 years ago — dates back to 1337, to the time when Edward the Black Prince, the first Duke of Cornwall, regularly rode down to the duchy for some hunting and a good time with his friends.

Dog Returned To Liz Taylor

DEL MAR (UPI) — Elizabeth Taylor got her little black and white dog, Daisy Mae, back Monday.

The actress, who was released from the Scripps Clinic during the weekend after undergoing a physical examination, lost the dog at the beach Sunday. The dog, a rare Shih Tzu, was returned yesterday to a fire station by a couple who asked not to be publicly identified. They turned down the $500 reward offered by Miss Taylor.

Political Flogging Banned In Africa

WINDHOEK, South West Africa (UPI) — The supreme court issued an order yesterday temporarily forbidding political floggings by tribal authorities in South West Africa.

In the terms of a provisional court order, the Ondangwa and Okwanyana tribal authorities were banned from flogging members of the South West Africa People's Organization (SWAPO) and the Democratic Co-operative Development Party (DEMKOP).

Rider Of Rocket Sled Is Honored

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dr. John Paul Stapp, who as an Air Force colonel earned the title "fastest man on earth" in 1954 for riding a rocket sled, has been honored for his research in biodynamics.

The Franklin Institute of Philadelphia has awarded Stapp the Elliott Cresson Gold Medal, the University of Southern California announced yesterday. Stapp is now a professor at USC.

In 1954, while researching the stress of gravity on human bodies, Stapp had himself strapped into a rocket-propelled sled, on tracks, that accelerated to 632 miles an hour in five seconds, covering 2,810 feet, and was then slammed to a halt in 1.4 seconds by a water scoop brake. The 6.4 second ride subjected Stapp to a force of 25 Gs during acceleration, increasing to 40 Gs decelerating. The data from the test was used in designing crash protection for use in aviation and other forms of transportation.

San Rafael air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Marinwood CSD To Cut Fuel Consumption

Marinwood Community Services District directors last night moved to cut district consumption of fuel.

The board agreed to study lighting throughout the district to see if electricity use can be limited, and said three of six floodlights illuminating the district community center will be turned off.

In addition, the district fire department has limited drill practice that requires use of fuels, according to Genevieve T. Bolding, district manager.

In other business, the board allocated $600 to buy a rototiller and a drill press, and named Barbara Miller assistant tiny tot leader.

The board also decided to develop an eligibility list for district firemen, she said.

The group next meets Dec. 17.

State Study Of Four-Day Work Week Is Asked

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Louis J. Papan, D-Daly City, has called for a state feasibility study of establishing a four-day work week in California as a solution to the energy crisis.

In letters to Gov. Ronald Reagan and Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, Papan yesterday declared: "In view of President Nixon's recent recommendations for conservation of energy resources, I believe that a shorter work week may cut down on usage of scarce fuels."

Papan said the impact of additional leisure time on energy usage also would have to be studied to insure that use would not increase.

Reporters' Shield Law Is Proposed

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — All federal controls over the content of radio and television news should be lifted to strengthen broadcasters' rights under the First Amendment, according to a panel of legal experts and journalists.

The 65 panel members also recommend a "broad shield law" to allow reporters to protect confidential sources and an independent government agency to review government secrets. The agency would report to Congress on "the use, or abuse, of the classification system."

The list of 13 proposals, released yesterday by the Roscoe Pound-American Trial Lawyers Association, were originally made at the foundation's conference on "The First Amendment and the News Media" held June 8-9 at Harvard University.

The conference recommended complete decontrol of broadcast news under the Federal Communications Act on grounds that radio and TV should be entitled to the same freedom of expression enjoyed by the press.

Laws-In Schools Group Appointed

A steering committee to introduce the California State Bar project, "Law in a Free Society," in Marin County schools has been appointed by the Marin County Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission, according to Douglas H. Bosco, county human relations director.

The program seeks to educate elementary and secondary school students in the legal and political institutions of this country. It is planned that teachers will be trained, speakers provided and schools assisted in starting the program.

The steering committee includes Jack L. Blaine, juvenile court referee; John L. Boudett, attorney; Bosco; Dr. Clifford W. Campbell, superintendent, Dixie School District; Dr. Robert Eddy of Novato; Albert Howenstein, San Anselmo police captain; Donald Kreps, principal, Redwood High school; Rev. Barrett Lampp, minister of First Baptist Church of San Rafael; Thomas Lorch, instruction coordinator for Tamalpais High School District; Edward J. Neumeier, attorney and staff member at Tamalpais High School District; Jack O. Rothe, director of instruction, Novato School District, and Dr. George C. Stone, Fairfax School District superintendent.

The committee next meets at 8 p.m. Dec. 4 at the Marin Civic Center.

John Dean Faced With Disbarment

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI) — Former White House counsel John Dean has been ordered to appear before a three judge panel to show cause why his license to practice law in Virginia should not be revoked.

Alexandria Circuit Judge Franklin P. Backus, in an order issued yesterday, requested Dean to appear in response to a complaint filed by a committee of the Virginia state bar, accusing Dean of "unethical, unprofessional and unworthy conduct" for his role in the Watergate case.

Judge Backus said the State Supreme Court would appoint two other justices to preside with him at the hearing, which will be scheduled at a later date. The panel could order Dean's disbarment.

Oklahoma Tornadoes Kill Five

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Tornadoes sliced through Kansas and Oklahoma late yesterday, killing five persons, injuring at least 50 others and causing at least $2 million in damage to a number of cities and towns.

A woman and her 3-week-old child were killed in Blanchard, Okla., and three other persons, including a 4-month-old child, were killed in Moore, Okla.

The twisters were part of a huge storm that battered the middle of the nation from the Rockies to the Mississippi Valley.

Rainfall registered over an inch at several places late Monday, including Oklahoma City, Grand Island, Neb., and Emporia, Kan.

Snow fell in the colder air to the west and northwest of the storm. Three inches of new snow were reported late Monday at North Platte, Neb., Goodland, Kan., Denver and Lamar, Colo.

Heavy snow warnings were in effect for today in the north central mountains and northeast Kansas and eastern Colorado

Marin Auto Buyers Going After The Smaller Models

Car Dealers Feeling Energy Crisis Effects

By MARY LEYDECKER

Anyone wanna buy a nice shiny low mileage Cadillac only driven to church on Sunday by a little old lady?"

The answer, at least in Marin, is a resounding "no."

On the other hand, how about this little Volkswagen? The fenders have a few dents, it's missing a windshield wiper and the brakes need a little work — BUT it gets really good mileage.

It probably will be snapped up.

This is the situation facing Marin car dealers in the wake of announcements gasoline rationing may not be far away.

Some big car dealers are bewildered, some are hopeful things will change and some are just plain mad.

The dealers who specialize in small cars, though, are laughing all the way to the bank — if they can find time to get away from their swarms of customers to get there.

As for the motor home dealers, their situation is so sad, even their fellow dealers feel sorry for them.

"They're trading down," was the most common statement of Marin's auto dealers contacted by the Independent-Journal.

In the past week especially, San Rafael Buick dealer Don Collins said he has had a rush of customers who want to trade in big heavy cars for smaller ones.

"They're not worried about price," he said; "they want a car that gets over 20 miles to the gallon."

His customers, he explained, mainly can afford more expensive cars but are afraid they may not be able to get the gas to keep them going.

The smaller Buick models are selling well, Collins said, but the big ones are sitting in the showroom. Big car trade-ins are difficult to get rid of, he added, and he has two Cadillacs he took on trade-ins that nobody seems to want.

Collins, like several other car dealers, said the fuel shortage seems to be taken more seriously in California than in many other parts of the country.

In the Midwest home of the big American car manufacturers, the large, heavy car is still very much in demand and for this reason, the manufacturers haven't yet responded to growing demands elsewhere for small vehicles, he said.

"They (the manufacturers) will have to take a loss," before they will scrap parts already ready for next year's big cars.

A spokesman at Lyons-Ryan Ford agency in San Rafael agreed with Collins that "the scare is greater in California," but said an explanation might be that Californians, who put an average of 17,000 miles a year on their cars, may have more reason to fear a gasoline shortage.

His customers, too, he said, are trading in their big cars and station wagons for the smaller Pintos, Mustangs and Mavericks. He added, though, there is still a market for good, clean used big cars if the price is low enough.

"If a family only drives 7,000 miles a year," then the difference in the amount of gasoline used by a big car, he said, "is not worth considering.

But over at Felton Volkswagen agency, there was no gloom at all.

"They're standing in line," said salesman Leo Noah, to buy the small cars. "They're selling like they're going out of style."

Douglas Fancher, sales manager at Annex Motors in San Rafael, said his agency, too, has had a "dramatic pickup" in sales in the past few weeks.

There is not only an increase in sales, he said, but a change in the type of customer. Many of the buyers coming into the agency, and who mainly choose Datsuns, which start at $2,500, could afford more expensive cars.

They are turning in "great, big station wagons" to buy the smaller cars, he said, which get from 20 to 30 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Dealers who sell the big motorhomes, which usually get only 6 to 8 miles per gallon, could find hope only in the fact that "this is usually a slow time of the year, anyway."

A spokesman at Marin Bay Motorhome Center said he hopes things will pick up in January and February, but sales are very low now.

Similarly, the Marin Recreational Vehicle Center said "it's hard to tell how much" the gasoline shortage has affected sales of their vehicles but said sales were "pretty slow." A salesman there said the agency also has received calls from owners of motor homes who would like to get rid of them.

Suit Filed For Girl Who Was Bitten By Dog Pack

A $500,000 damage suit on behalf of a 6-year-old girl attacked by a pack of dogs in Larkspur was filed yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

Named as defendants are the County of Marin, the City of Larkspur, the county health department, the Marin Humane Society and five persons who allegedly owned dogs involved.

Attorney Anthony Duffy's lawsuit identified them as Allen Lissauer, Allen Crane, Muriel I. Smith, Henry T. Taylor, and J. O. Malone.

According to the suit, the public agencies and dog owners were negligent in letting the unleashed dogs "form into a running pack."

Larkspur police at the time reported Serena Coffey, then 5, was walking to kindergarten last Feb. 1 on West Baltimore Avenue when she was bitten on the back, shoulders and thighs by 10 dogs.

Serena, of 32 Millard Road, was not seriously hurt, police said.

A little over a month later, another child, 7-year-old Michael D. Lessin, was bitten 12 times in the same neighborhood by dogs reportedly owned by Lissauer and Crane.

Rohnert Park Well Permit Decision Delayed By Board

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors stalled yesterday on a decision on whether to permit drilling additional water wells at Rohnert Park.

Supervisors said they will vote next Monday on the proposal for two wells in Rohnert Park to boost water supply to Petaluma. Board members said they are still concerned that additional wells will lower the water table and cause problems for rural residents who depend on wells for their entire water supply.

Under the plan the Sonoma County Water Agency would spend $200,000 to drill the wells which would supply one million gallons of water per day to Petaluma.

Petaluma City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer said water rationing may be required next year if additional water isn't received until the Russian River aqueduct system is completed in three years.

The board heard that Rohnert Park will purchase the wells for its own system when Petaluma no longer needs the water.

In other business, the supervisors voted to keep the Department of Forestry fire stations in Petaluma and Cloverdale open on a year-round basis. The fire station at Healdsburg will be closed to save funds.

Rural residents on Nov. 6 voted against a tax rate increase for fire protection that would have permitted all three stations to remain open.

Senior Citizens Set Caribbean Cruise

The Novato senior citizens are planning a cruise to Caribbean Island next April, according to Pat Clow, senior citizen coordinator.

Reservations for the cruise must be made by Dec. 3, she said. Further information can be obtained at the Novato Parks and Recreation office, 917 Sherman Street, Novato.

Gunman Steals Woman's Purse

A gunman stole a purse from a Petaluma woman at her home yesterday, police reported.

Lula M. Barker, 68, of 1821 Lakeville Highway, said a young man came to her home at 6:45 p.m., pointed a revolver at her and demanded her purse and car keys. She said she handed them over and he drove off in a late model blue car.

Police said poor lighting prevented Mrs. Barker from seeing the gunman's face. The purse and its contents were valued at $16.

Youth Commission For Rohnert Park

A youth commission to encourage young people to participate in civic affairs was created yesterday by the Rohnert Park City Council.

City Clerk Kathryn L. J. Logue said five students elected by their peers will form the commission in January. They will include one student from Rohnert Park Junior High School and four representing each grade at Rancho Cotate High School.

Mayor Armando Flores proposed the commission be formed and said the young people could be valuable as advisers to the council as well as all city commissions.

The Rohnert Park City Council Also:

PARK — Directed the planning commission to review the general plan to find a location for a large community park with a minimum of 40 acres.

CONSULTANT — Hired traffic engineer Renato Martinez as consultant with a fee to range from $2,200 to $5,000 depending on time spent.

APPOINTMENTS — Named Tina Helgren, a legal secretary, and Dr. Peter Webber, an optometrist, to serve on the parks and recreation commission. Donald Kite, a teacher, was named to the cultural arts commission.

CITIZEN — Named Sonoma supervisor Ignazio A. Vell an honorary citizen of Rohnert Park for his support of community projects.

MEETING — Adjourned to the next meeting on Dec. 3 at 7 p.m. at the city offices.

Route Shift Angers Novato Commuters

Irate Novato commuters, arguing they already walk far enough to catch buses, yesterday petitioned Golden Gate Transit not to move their stop even farther from their part of the city.

Patricia Conacher, one of the commuters to be affected by the route shift scheduled after Dec. 2, told the Independent-Journal 170 signatures had been gathered on the petition protesting the shift.

The shift will eliminate the dog leg off Novato Boulevard to a stop at the Greyhound bus depot. It will affect Route 54 coaches from San Marin to San Francisco's financial district. Route 50 buses to San Francisco's civic Center still will make the dog leg to the bus depot.

Jerome Kuykendall, transportation developer for the transit system, said the shift was designed to save fuel and cut six minutes from the run. Roughly 400 riders board between San Marin and downtown Novato, while only about 60 board the 54 bus at the bus depot. The result is 400 riders are invoncenienced to benefit about 60, he said.

Elimination of the stop will add only three blocks to the walk for persons coming from east of the freeway, Kuykendall noted.

Mrs. Conacher, who works at an engineering and architectural firm, said the fact the petition got 170 signatures showed far more than 60 persons will be affected by the route change. She acknowledged that some of the signatures were by persons using the Civic Center bus who feared it, too, may be restricted to stops along Novato Boulevard.

Copies of the petition were sent to officials of the Golden Gate Bridge and Marin County Transit districts, she said.

Mrs. Conacher also said no public notice ever was given of the route change. Affected commuters learned of it only by chance from the bus drivers, she said. She termed the change "high-handed," and said it was based on incorrect facts about the number of commuters who will be inconvenienced by the change.

A spokesman for Golden Gate Transit, however, said notices of the change were put on each seat of each bus on all morning and evening runs earlier this month.

Open Space Panel Will Be Selected

The Sausalito City Council is expected to appoint a citizens' committee to promote a bond election for open space at 8 p.m. today in council chambers on Bridgeway.

The bond election, estimated at $1.5 to $2 million, is planned for the April election.

Two Major Street Jobs Proposed In Petaluma

Two major street projects, to be funded by gasoline tax revenue, were proposed last night to the Petaluma City Council.

Finance director Cecil G. Gealta estimated the city will receive $767,778 by June 30 of 1977, but warned that gasoline rationing could reduce that amount by 25 per cent.

Gealta said the city now has $13,258 in tax funds, but should receive $206,800 per year through 1977.

City engineer David A. Young recommended that $504,000 of the funds be spent on two major projects. They include widening East Washington Street from Lakeville Street to Highway 101 and widening Magnolia Avenue from Petaluma Boulevard North to Keokuk Street.

Young suggested the remainder of the funds be spent on traffic signals. Heading the priority list for signals were Washington Street intersections at Kentucky and Howard Streets and East Washington Street at Maria Drive.

Young said if gasoline rationing reduces funds, the council should consider putting major street projects to voters in a bond election.

Councilmen said they would study the recommendations and schedule a special meeting for a later date.

The Petaluma City Council Also:

TRIP — Voted 5-2 to spend $1,033 to send three councilmen to a League of Cities meeting in Puero Rico Dec. 1-8. Councilmen Robert A. Brunner and William A. Perry Jr. said they would attend and Mayor Helen Putnam said she might. Councilmen James H. Harberson and Fred V. Mattei voted against the expenditure, saying it was unnecessary.

COMMITTEE — Alloted $500 to the bicentennial committee to cover planning expenses.

PLANNER — Appointed Carl P. Bellovich, a stockbroker, to fill a vacancy on the planning commission. Bellovich, 843 Garden Court, is employed by Dean Witter and Co., San Rafael. He has lived in Petaluma since 1968.

RADIOS — Awarded a $5,775 contract for seven radios for public works department vehicles to Motorola Corp.

MEETING — Adjourned to next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. to consider calling a March 5 bond election for park development and a new library.

Man Denies Charge He Slew Coed

Donald Eugene Wagner yesterday denied killing a New York coed and stuffing her nude body into a cabinet in his motor home.

Municipal Court Judge David R. Baty accepted Wagner's dual plea of innocent and innocent by reason of insanity and set a preliminary hearing for next Tuesday.

Wagner's progress through Marin courts on the murder charge was halted three months ago while he underwent psychiatric testing at Napa State Hospital.

He was returned to Marin two weeks ago and, in a superior court hearing, was declared capable of understanding the charge and helping in his defense.

The 23-year-old Redwood City man is charged in the shooting death of Patricia H. Dollinger, 21, whose body was found July 20 in Wagner's motor home parked in Novato.

Accident Victim Is Satisfactory

A Santa Rosa woman seriously injured in an auto accident Saturday on Highway 101 was reported in satisfactory condition today at Novato General Hospital.

Laurene Lee Cooper, 19, suffered a broken nose, broken pelvis, broken left leg and broken right arm in the accident at 2 a.m. on the highway in Novato. California Highway Patrol officers said she was northbound when her car slammed into a raised center divider and overturned.

Miss Cooper was booked into Marin County Jail in absentia on suspicion of drunken driving, according to officers.

Bentsen To Test Political Waters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr., D-Tex., said today he plans to test the political waters during the next year to see if it is feasible for him to seek the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976.

Asked on the NBC-TV "Today Show" about whether he would seek the presidency, Bentsen said he planned to spend the next year campaigning for Democratic senators and helping them to raise money.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Effect Of Vitamins On Common Cold Helpful But Not A Cure

No foods, medicines, plasters or electronic devices will prevent or cure the common cold. We purposely neglected to mention vitamins because the value of large doses of ascorbic acid (vitamin C) has not yet been established. Research is continuing and available reports have been controverisal.

Vitamin C has no effect on cold viruses. On the other hand, "colds" do have some effect on the metabolism of ascorbic acid. The rationale is that, at the onset of a cold, the amount of vitamin C in the white blood cells is reduced. By the fifth day, the level returns to normal.

ONE OF the largest studies done on vitamin C and its effectiveness in colds involved 1,000 students in Toronto. The illness was characterized by a runny nose or sore throat and occurred with equal frequency in both treated and placebo groups. However, those on vitamin C were not as toxic (tired or achy) as those who took pacebo tablets. The latter were similar in appearance and taste to the ascorbic acid tablets. The takers of vitamin C were off work for fewer days.

Students in the Toronto study took one gram of ascorbic acid a day and four grams daily when they felt a cold coming on. We question the wisdom of this large dosage because too little is known about the possible harmful effects of taking too much vitamin C. Research is also being done on this aspect.

RESPIRATORY PROBLEMS can be lessened by keeping the body at disease fighting strength. In this respect, sleep is important and so are a well-balanced diet, an adequate fluid intake, and ample exercise. It also helps to avoid close contact with others who have colds. This is stressed because some microorganisms, including viruses, are strong enough to overcome our natural resistance. Sore throats and nasal colds also are passed along via contaminated fingers. Wash the hands frequently during the day, especially before eating.

Many parents acquire their colds from the children who are more susceptible and have more opportunities to catch these infections at school. Wash the hands frequently. Teach the youngster to use his own glass, towel, dishes, and utensils. Kissing on the mouth should be discouraged when colds are rife.

Medical questions will be answered by mail if stamped self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, San Rafael, Ca 94902. Telephone inquiries will not be answered.

STOMACH STREETS

P. T. writes: Is it true that there are special channels, called stomach streets, where the water we drink bypasses the food in our stomach and passes into the intestine? It sounds like fiction to me, but a friend insists it is so.

Yes, but they are not called streets and there are no stop signs or red lights. Water may hug the upper curvature (roof) of the stomach in much the same way as cream or tea runs down the edge of a pitcher or pot when poured.

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 20, the 324th day of 1973 with 41 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

John Merle Coulter, American botanist, teacher and writer, was born Nov. 20, 1851.

On this day in history:

In 1620, a baby girl was delivered aboard the Mayflower in Massachusetts Bay, first child born in the New Enlgnad colonies. She was named Peregrine White.

In 1945, 24 top German leaders went on trial at Nuernberg before the International War Crimes Tribunal.

In 1947, Princess (later Queen) Elizabeth of England married Royal Navy Lt. Philip Mountbatten.

In 1968, explosion and fire entombed 78 men in a coal mine at Farmington, W.Va.

A thought for the day: Scottish writer Thomas Carlyle said, "Music is well said to be the speech of angels."

Attack Slated On Diseases

A strike against four diseases will be made in Marin and Southern Sonoma Counties on Dec. 8 with individuals and organizations making a one-day informational attack on the four.

Volunteers will go from house to house and to such places as supermarket parking lots to talk about the diseases and pass out literature on them.

The four illnesses to be hit are dental cavities, venereal diseases, alcoholism and drug addiction, according to Dr. Theodore D. Hiatt, of the Marin County Health Department.

Individuals and organizations who would like to help this effort to inform people on these four health problems, may volunteer their service to Joseph L. Weber, state representative at the Human Resource Center at 580 Irwin Street, San Rafael.

Museum To Close

The Boyd Museum of Science in San Rafael will close for a Thanksgiving holiday from Thursday through Monday. The museum will reopen at 10 a.m. next Tuesday.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Should West Be An Expert, Then South's Victory Stopped

One of the important things to remember about a queen is that it will win a trick from the jack of the same suit — if given the chance to do so. If you throw the queen away, however, its value will be lost.

KEY TO GAME

The fate of the game contract in no-trump depended on West's opening lead. If West were an expert, South would go down.

When the hand was actually played, West was not an expert. He opened the queen of hearts and the defense collapsed than and there.

There was no way to stop South from winning two heart tricks. South also had three spades and four clubs, all of which added up to nine sure tricks.

DEFEATS CONTRACT

An expert would lead the deuce of hearts from the West hand. East takes the ace of hearts and returns the suit.

Now South cannot win a trick with the jack of hearts. If he plays it at once, West wins with the queen and leads another heart.

South's best chance is to go up with the king of hearts and lead a diamond. East wins with the king of diamonds and leads a heart to his partner's queen.

HEARTS FATAL, TOO

As matters now stand, West can lead a diamond, whereupon East will take the ace of diamonds and the rest of the hearts. Down two. But even if West fails to find the diamond return, South must still go down. Deprived of the jack of hearts, he can win only eight tricks at most.

Remember this opening lead of a low card in partner's suit, particularly against a no-trump contract. It is especially important when you hold A-x-x, K-x-x, Q-x-x or even J-x-x. In all such cases, lead the lowest rather than the highest card in your partner's suit.

DAILY QUESTION

With vulnerability equal, partner deals and bids one diamond.

The next player bids two clubs, and you hold:

♠ - K 10 7
♥ - K J 7
♦ - 7 6 3
♣ - K 10 9 5.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Double.

Your hand will probably win four or five tricks, and partner should easily win at least two or three tricks for his opening bid. Whether partner has a good or only a fair hand, you will probably collect more for the double than for bidding on.

Like Days Of Old For 49er Fans

For the frustrated 49er fans it is just like the not so good old days. Remember the 49er teams of the '50s and '60s? There were no championships to cloud the mind. The 49ers would play their regular number of season games and then retire for the year. There was always next year. Wait 'til next year. We waited.

During those non-championship years at Kezar Stadium many of us learned to live with 49er defeat. It was a way of life. It got so you went to the game expecting a loss. If it came, so what? It was in the natural order. But a 49er surprise victory? It turned an otherwise drab weekend into a thing of beauty.

THEN CAME THE FIRST three years of the 70s. San Francisco had hired itself a new coach in Dick Nolan in 1968 and he had vowed to turn the team into a contender. After a 7-6-1 season in 1968 and a 4-8-2 season in 1969, Nolan helped turn the Niners around and at the turn of the decade the team had become winners. Three straight division titles in '70, '71 and '72. No longer did writers snicker in the press box when the 49ers took the field. Opposing coaches worked hard trying to prepare the teams for the 49ers. And yes, the fans changed.

No longer did the fans go to the game expecting defeat. They had a championship team to cheer for. They could go to the team's new playground at Candlestick Park and scream their fool heads off. They didn't have to sit back and swig the booze in hopes of forgetting about the game that was taking place before their bleary eyes. There are still a few drunks at the games, but the number has dwindled drastically since the team began playing winning football. It seems winning football breeds sober fans. Or at least not as many drunk ones.

WHEN THE 1973 SEASON started, the changed 49er fans had become so used to winning it was taken for granted that it would be another winning season. But unless some miracle takes place in which the team wins all four remaining games, it will be a loser. Back to the bottle, you guys.

I had predicted a 6-8 season a week ago and more than one disgruntled fan has since told me that I am wrong — it will be a 4-10 season, they say.

This 49er collapse is making everybody ask the same question: What happened to the 49ers? With the talent the team has they should be in contention for a playoff berth, not wallowing in the western division cellar. No one really knows the answer, but there are a lot of ideas.

My personal belief is that the team lacks leadership when things get tough. They need someone able to get them "up" when things go bad and the heads start hanging. Dick Nolan knows his football, and believe me, he hates to lose. But he is not one to get a player emotionally charged up. And I don't care what some 49ers say, football, like any other sport, is basically a kid's game and there has to be some little boy in you, to put it the way Reggie Jackson did after the World Series.

AND FOR A TEAM that needs leadership, juggling quarterbacks around is not exactly the way to solve the problem. Joe Reed got his chance the last two games and showed that he was not Superman, the savior to take them to the top of the mountain. Steve Spurrier now might get his chance but if he fails the fans might start shouting for taxi squad player Dennis Morrison. When a team sours, it is always easier to scream for the quarterback's head. It's much simpler that way.

Mistakes, injuries and lack of unity have been the 49ers' undoing. But there's always next year. Now that has a familiar ring to it.

Brodie Unhappy As A Third Stringer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — John Brodie's retirement from pro football came a little faster than he had planned.

"When I announced my retirement, I meant at the end of the year," the San Francisco 49er quarterback told a luncheon club yesterday.

Brodie made his announcement Oct. 25 and since then, Joe Reed has been the starting signal caller and Steve Spqrier has been the backup man.

"Third-string quarterback is not where it's at," Brodie commented. "There are two other quarterbacks and I don't know how I could get rid of both of them, even if I came on the field with a gun."

Commenting on changes in the game since he turned pro in 1957, Brodie said, "Sure, the zone defenses have changed the game, but I still think you have to throw long. If you don't, you're shortening the field and the defense can cover anything you throw.

"When I first came into pro football, some of the defensive linemen were shorter than I was and I could outrun all of them," he added. "Now they go 6-7 and I can't outrun any of them.

"In my early years, we used to get 3 ½ to four seconds to throw ... now it's about 2 ½.

Brodie sized up Reed as "potentially one of the finest pro quarterback prospects I've seen in years. The only one I would put ahead of him would be Jim Plunkett.

"No, Joe doesn't have a slow release," Brodie said in reply to a question. "Actually, it's very fast."

Brodie said he planned to devote the next eight or nine months to Narcanon, a program for persons with problems due to drugs or alcohol. He's a director of the program.

Warriors Start Five-Game Trip

MILWAUKEE (UPI) —The Golden State Warriors start a five-game road trip tonight against the tough Milwaukee Bucks.

Golden State then must take on Atlanta, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago before coming home to Oakland.

The Warriors lost their last game 109-106 to the Philadelphia 76ers.

GALLOPING GAL ON GRIDIRON

Tiny Julie Cardinale turned the corner, passing a fallen rival en route to a 20-yard gain as the Saints closed out their football season with a 13-6 victory over the weekend in Dallas, Tex. The win gave the girls' team the best record (4-1-2) in an otherwise all-boy Young Men's Christian Association league of flag football. The girls' team, in its first year after the YMCA allowed them to compete against boys, plays in the White Rock Y's First and Second Grade League.

Co-Champ Teams Get 14 Spots

CAMPBELL — College of Marin landed just one player — lineman Leo Fahy — on the All-Camino Norte Conference football team which was dominated by players from co-champs Contra Costa and De Anza.

The all-conference offensive and defensive teams were selected by CNC coaches last night at West Valley Junior College. Contra Costa landed eight players on the 23-man team and De Anza placed six.

Marin quarterback Mike Sanderson, 5-foot-8, 150-pound sophomore; end John Buckley, 5-foot-9, 160-pound freshman, and linebacker Rod Powell, 6-1, 195-pound soph were given honorable mention nods.

The Tars' Fahy, 6-2, 212 pounds and a sophomore, was a guard on offense and sometimes helped on defense as a linebacker in special situations. He played two seasons of football for Marin after starring at Marin Catholic High. He is considering continuing his education at Sacramento State.

Sanderson threw 12 touchdown passes for Marin and passed for more than 1,400 yards to finish runnerup to Contra Costa's Eric Sjoberg in the balloting. Sjoberg gained more than 1,200 yards passing and tossed for two more touchdowns than Sanderson.

Knowles Shares Stockton Award

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Donald Knowles, native Missourian who starred in relief for the world champion Oakland A's, and hard-hitting Dave Johnson of the Atlanta Braves, who set a new record for home runs by a second baseman, will be honored Jan. 21 by the St. Louis Chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Knowles, a resident of Brunswick, Mo., and Johnson, who broke the mark set by Rogers Hornsby, will share the J. Roy Stockton Award, named for the former sports editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Ted Simmons and Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals and Kan Holtzman, Oakland southpaw who was born and raised in the St. Louis area, will share the J. G. Taylor Spink Award as St. Louis Baseball Man of the Year at the Writers' Banquet.

Tarkenton's Influence On Falcons' Lee

ATLANTA (UPI) — Atlanta quarterback Bob Lee must have picked up a few pointers when he understudied Fran Tarkenton at Minnesota last year.

Lee stole a page from Tarkenton's book last night and his scrambling enabled the Falcons to hand the Vikings their first loss of the season, a 20-14 upset that could vault Atlanta into the wildcard berth for the National Football Conference playoffs.

Lee and Tarkenton both threw two touchdown passes in the contest. But the one that provided the winning points was a 39-yarder by Lee on a play that Tarkenton thought he had patented.

The Falcon quarterback, apparently trapped at midfield, broke loose from two would-be tacklers, nearly lost his balance as he stumbled toward the sidelines, then lofted the ball to Eddie Ray to give Atlanta a 17-7 lead with 1:10 left to play in the first half.

"I really thought I was going to go down," said Lee. "I saw Eddie stop and I wanted him to go on. I think I gave him a wave, I don't even know that. I remember hoping they wouldn't notice him."

Ray, who didn't even know he'd be playing until he learned shortly before game time that Art Malone was still injured, caught the ball in the end zone.

"I didn't know what was going to happen," said the 235-pound fullback. "I just kept backing."

The win was the sixth straight for the Falcons, who are now 7-3 and trail Los Angeles by a game in the NFC West. The Vikings, 9-1, had already sewed up the NFC Central for the fifth time in six years.

Atlanta's chances of catching the Rams appear slim, even if they win their four remaining games. But the Falcons are in a fight with Dallas and Washington, both also 7-3, for that wildcard playoff berth as best runnerup.

If the Falcons are the wildcard team, their first playoff foe would be the Vikings at Minnesota and Viking receiver John Gilliam hopes they make it because he wants another shot at them.

The Vikings, No. 2 in NFC rushing prior to last night, picked up only 82 yards running against the Falcons and more than half of that came in the final period. Minnesota had only eight yards, that by passing, in the first period and only 13 yards rushing in the first half.

Dave Hampton, who caught Lee's first touchdown pass, paced all runners with 108 yards.

Falcon rookie Nick Mike-Mayer missed field goal tries of 46 and 26 yards during a scoreless first period but later added field goals of 25 and 49 yards (he's hit on 23 of 31) and two conversions to raise his NFL-leading scoring to 96 points.

ALL-LEAGUE

Voting Led By Ingraham

Tight end Marvin (Corky) Ingraham of Drake High School was the lone unanimous selection last night as the Marin County Athletic League football coaches met to choose their all-league team.

Ingraham also was chosen at a linebacker spot, joining Terra Linda lineman Bruce Bollen and Redwood back Mark Richter as the only players to be selected on both offense and defense.

Ingraham caught 17 passes for 395 yards, a 23.2 average and a league-leading six touchdowns to retain the first-team spot he won in last year's balloting. Other repeaters were Bollen in the defensive line and Ken Straw of Novato at linebacker.

Novato, which shut out its last five opponents, placed five players on the first-team defense — Straw, end Scott Johnson, back Dave Brazell and linemen Bob Clay and Mike Martin. Two other Hornets made honorable mention — end Hal Jennings and linebacker Mark Doran.

CORKY INGRAHAM
Unanimous choice

Redwood, which shared the championship with Novato, filled three spots on the 12-man offensive unit and two openings on the 13-man defense. Drake, which finished third after making a run at the title, placed

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

Some Bad Times For Outdoorsmen

The rains Saturday kept most people home, and the north winds Sunday didn't improve things. This made it a rough weekend for the outdoorsmen.

The Papermill Creek tidewater salmon fishing area was high and muddy. I suppose most salmon are now on the closed spawning beds throughout upper Papermill Creek. Last Thursday was the closing date of trout season for the streams which made upper Papermill Creek legal to fish until then. Some of the fellows tried for some of those salmon, but none were caught that I heard about. Several fellows caught some good sized trout. Now you will have to do your salmon fishing in the tidewaters at Point Reyes Station.

STAFFORD RESERVOIR west of Novato is to be stocked this week with some of the last fish of the hatchery. There could be some lunkers planted over there. The Marin County lakes and reservoirs are open for trout throughout the year; the limit per person is five.

UP AT TOMALES Bay, a new ecological area recently was formed, namely the Tomales Bay Ecological Area. It is closed to all hunting, but fishing is permitted. It was posted last Thursday with "Closed to Hunting" signs. One man who was in the area hunting got the surprise of his life when suddenly he was surrounded by the men doing the posting. After reading the signs, he quickly picked up his decoys and got out of the area.

I was watching the action. When he saw me, he came up to the car to ask about the area and the new signs. I guess he had hunted there all his life, we talked a few minutes, then a car drove up and a small boy (about six) got out of the car and immediately asked, "Did you get caught again Daddy?" Dad just answered, "Nope, not this time, but don't be putting ideas into anyone's head!"

The following now constitutes the Tomales Bay Ecological Reserve: That marsh land and tidal flat at the southern extremity of Tomales Bay, Marin County, which is bounded approximately as follows: on the northeast by the shoreline nearest State Highway 1, on the east by the first rise of hills above the marsh, on the southeast by the levees separating marsh land from wet meadow, on the southwest by the marsh edge near Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, and on the northwest by a line drawn from Willow Point in a northeasterly direction to the mouth of a small unnamed creek approximately one mile south of Millerton Creek on the opposite shore.

These are described as parcels one, two, and three in that certain deed to the State of California, dated Dec. 14, 1970 and recorded April 16, 1973 in Book 2676 at page 171, Document No. 14189, Official Records of the County of Marin.

On Saturday, there were three hunters in the same closed area; they hadn't seen the new signs when they launched their boat in the darkness. Warden Russ Ild and I called them in upon our arrival in the early morning in a thundering rainstorm. I think they were glad to get out of there. We warned them, then let them keep their ducks which were five scoters (four blue bills and a canvasback).

SAM CRAWFORD of Loch Lomond called Saturday evening to say that he had fished in that storm out on San Pablo Bay. Sam owns one of those Grand Banks boats which even in the roughest weather, when anchored, doesn't move a bit.

He had taken a friend, Harry Loebensteen of San Francisco fishing for sturgeon. Harry caught a 74-inch, 90-pound sturgeon.

MOST OF the reports I have received on the pheasant season opener have been that things were tough. I checked one bird! One hunter said that the whole country was flooded in the Woodland area. The Sutter and Yolo bypasses have flooded over. The Sutter Refuge shooting area has also flooded, so shoots there are out. Howard Leach, Fish and Game biologist from Sacramento reported a one bird per hunter average for the pheasant opener at Graylodge.

The ocean salmon fishing season closed last Sunday, so it's a wait until February for the new opener.

THE CRAB SEASON opened last Tuesday, but from all reports I have received it was a poor one. The wholesale price is at $1 per pound — so the retail price will be the highest ever, but probably few crabs will be available. Things are tough.

PREP OF WEEK

Tam's Michaelsen: There When Needed

By LEW CODDINGTON

Rob Michaelsen is there when you need him. Whether the task at hand is blocking an opposing lineman, sacking a quarterback, punting a team out of trouble or kicking a crucial conversion, Tamalpais High School's No. 74 is equal to it.

The 6-foot, 200-pound senior contributed in all four areas last Friday as the Indians concluded their Marin County Athletic League season by defeating San Rafael, 7-6, for their lone victory — a victory considered overdue after a tie the previous week and a narrow loss the week before that.

"I really found myself since moving to middle guard," he says. "I enjoy defense more because I like to use my hands and technique. I played defense a little bit last year, but I was wondering why I didn't play more."

A varsity player for three years, Michaelsen played offensive guard as a sophomore and tackle as a junior and senior, missing part of his junior year with a knee injury. He played defensive tackle and later middle guard this year.

His kicking career did not blossom until this season, and then only because of injuries to punter Kevin Murphy and placekicker Dan Morgan.

Because he punted for the freshman team and has practiced since, Michaelsen was ready, and handled the duties flawlessly in two close, tense games where the kicking game was vital.

Rob never kicked a placement in a high school game before Friday, when his extra point provided the margin of victory against San Rafael. He kicked off for several games.

(Despite those examples of prowess, it would be inaccurate to say Michaelsen "does it all." He doesn't pass, or at least jokes about his own passing after throwing an interception from punt formation which San Rafael returned for a touchdown.)

Michaelsen also plays baseball for Tam, when not recuperating. A broken finger limited the first baseman-outfielder's play last year.

In the winter, he plays no sports at Tam, but instead goes skiing whenever he can, usually to Heavenly Valley or Alpine Meadows. In summer, he fishes, and he works in tennis and golf when he can.

A B student, he intends to go to Pacific Lutheran College in Tacoma, Wash., and major in history or business administration. "It's a small school (enrollment: 3,300) and I have some family in Washington," he says. "Besides, they have a good football team."

Michaelsen is not involved in any activities at Tam except the Good Times Club, a newly-founded organization "to get spirit going again, to create student involvement in sports," he says. The group has several activities planned.

"Coaches (Jess) Racines and (Fred) Mack have done a lot for football at Tam," Rob says. "The whole attitude of the younger kids shows a lot more spirit as far as sports is concerned."

California Move For Waterfowl

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Driven by snow and rain storms, waterfowl had moved from the Northwest into California, boosting bird populations on the Tule Lake and Lower Klamath refuges and throughout the central valley, the Department of Fish and Game said yesterday.

However, the department said, duck numbers are down about 10 per cent over last year and the goose population shows a 26 per cent decline.

Based on a biweekly aerial survey, the department estimated that the waterfowl population included 4 million ducks, 717,370 geese, and 432,975 coots.

Donkey Basketball At Drake

It has everything you could want from a basketball game: stubborn defense, strength under the backboards, potential for a high-speed fast break. There may be an occasional mule-headed play, but nobody is worried.

A donkey basketball game will be held tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Drake High School to benefit the Drake Lettermen Club. Drake coaches, teachers and former basketball players and Fairfax and San Anselmo policemen will be playing.

"It should be a lot of fun," said Pete Hayward, head basketball coach and Lettermen Club advisor. The game will adhere closely to the rules of regular basketball, with a few necessary changes — there will be no dribbling, for example.

The donkeys are provided by the Burro Sports Club of Riverside, and are trained in the sport — sometimes backward, says Hayward, "so that when you try to get them to go forward, they go backward," which only adds to the general madness.

Tickets cost $1.50 for adults, $1 for students and 75 cents for persons under school age. They are available from Hayward, Lettermen Club members and at the gate.

A preliminary game matching the St. Rita's and St. Anselm's Catholic Youth Organization teams will be played at 6:15 p.m.

Surgery On Knee In Winter

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dick Butkus says he expects to undergo surgery on his right knee this winter and if a problem can be corrected, he says he'll be playing middle linebacker for the Chicago Bears again next year.

Butkus, plagued all season by his troubled right knee, was absent from the Bears' starting lineup for only the second time in nine years Sunday when Chpcago lost 30-7 to Detroit. He said he did not know yet whether he would be able to play Sunday when the Bears play Minnesota.

However, the husky star brushed aside suggestions that he would retire at the end of this season.

"Well, I dbn't know," Butkus said. "People talk about me retiring. Well if I was young, fast, healthy and had a lot of money and my whole sex life ahead of me, I'd retire like Secretariat."

Butkis said arthritis "isn't much more than 20 per cent" of his knee problem.

"I've got something wrong with the bone," Butkus said. "I hqven't said much about this because I hqan't thought it was anybody's business. Something's wrong with the joint, that's all. I'll find out later.

"If it's something that can be corrected, and I think it can be, I'll be playing next year."

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Funds Not Best One Could Have

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am now driving a truck, but in about three years expect to open a small restaurant. I own 213 shares of Value Line Special Situations and 251 of Franklin Research Capital Funds. I would very much appreciate your appraisal of these holdings. — A.G.

A. Based on their performance records, resistance to declines, yields and expense ratios, these funds are somewhat less attractive than others under the same management teams. Neither fund has distributed income dividends or capital gains in the past two years. While rebounds in NAV in the September quarter were above average, overall return on a longer term basis has been better in Value Line Income Fund and Franklin Income Fund. Your shares are exchangeable at net asset value.

Q. I have 75 shares of Lykes-Youngstown preferred which was originally Youngstown Sheet & Tube. Should I sell and reinvest for income and appreciation? — B.C.

A. At the present time, no. Between Feb. and Oct., 1973, LY paid $3.75 in dividend averages on the $2.50 Series A convertible preferred which you received in the 1969 merger. $3.75 in back dividends still remains to be cleared. This fact is reflected in the price of the preferred shares, which currently sell at a 79 per cent premium over conversion value.

With a deficit of $0.55 a share reported in the first nine months, payment schedule on the balance of dividend arrears is uncertain. Although in the third quarter net income was $1.1 million, this was insufficient to cover dividend requirements. Operating revenues for the nine-month interim were up 22.5 per cent. The company has been afflicted by production problems and the inability to raise prices sufficiently to cover soaring raw material and other costs. However, a price boost for cold-rolled sheet was announced at the end of October with other product prices soon to be raised. Since steel products accounted for 86 per cent of Lykes-Youngstown operating revenues last year, these increases should have a significant impact on earnings. Although this situation is speculative, retention appears warranted.

New Bank Is Built Like A Bridge

By AUSTIN C. WEHRWEIN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

MINNEAPOLIS — The newest building here was built like a bridge. It has been called "a cage hanging over a hidden stronghold," a $30-million structure for which there was no prototype.

It is the first entirely new Federal Reserve Bank building since the spate of such "Fed banks" were built in the 1920's and is a break from the tradition of "securely secured Renaissance facades."

In less poetic language, the 11-story structure actually hangs 30 feet above a block-square plaza. Cables enclosed in a steel beam droop from towers at each end to form a "catenary." Laymen recognize the method as that used in suspension bridges.

To prevent the towers from being pulled inward, a steel "truss" was erected across the top. With a bridge, the "load" would be assumed by anchor cables extending away from the towers.

These "Fed banks" have two functions: the normal office paper work and the safekeeping of a vast treasure of money and securities.

So below the public plaza there are three levels, in actuality a concrete fortress hollowed out of a granite-clad mass, accessible nonetheless to authorized trucks via convenient ramps.

The sloping plaza above is as open to the public as the fortress cave below is denied to the curious, or, indeed, to the criminal.

Located at the north end of the tree-lined Nicollet Mall in the downtown Gateway Center renewal area, the 2.5-acre plaza with the small "forest" of transplanted trees already is a favorite retreat in the city's heart.

Fat iron rails around the trees double as benches. The plaza around the glass-sheathed bridge-building is envisioned as a site for concerts and other public gatherings. It is far more than a roof for that fortress.

Each of the floors has 32,000 square feet of uninterrupted space, with private offices enclosed "islands" that are partially glass-walled. Every employee thus has a view through heat-absorbing outside glass walls.

The architect is Gunnar Birkerts & Associates of Birmingham, Mich.

Stocks Continue Decline Because Of Energy Woes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pessimism over the energy crisis and the recession that could result next year sent stocks lower across a broad front today on the New York Stock Exchange. Trading was heavy.

The decline in the index of 30 blue chips followed a loss of 28.67 points yesterday —the worst in more than a decade and the fifth largest fall in exchange history. Analysts attributed that decline to the same energy related problems plaguing today's trading through the noon hour.

Declines far outdistanced advances, 1,169 to 174, among the 1,635 issues traded.

Selling pressure increased considerably from the previous noon volume totaled more than 9,000,000 shares, compared with Monday's 7,540,000 up to the same period.

Confusion over the Arab oil embargo and heavy profit taking resulted in big losses for the oil group. Superior Oil, a highly volatile stock, dropped 11 ½, Getty 5 ¾, and Exxon 2 ½.

PROBLEMS EYED ON HOUSING MIX

Novato Workshop Told Marin Citizens Opt For Open Space

Marin citizens are making "political decisions" in favor of open space and against low and moderate income housing, a county planning commissioner told a Novato housing workshop last night.

Commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo explained that open space bond issues approved at the Nov. 6 election blocked planned housing projects in Santa Venetia and Kentfield that "could have provided some low and moderate income housing."

After more than a year of effort, she said, the county planners and housing advocates can boast only one project — in Ignacio — where a builder has contracted to earmark at least 15 per cent of the units for low and moderate income occupancy.

Mill Valley has one similar contract; Novato officials have requested developers of Cheda Farms, San Marin East and the Pacheco Ranch to prepare programs for making part of their projects available at less than average cost, the workshop was told.

"When you add up the score" on Marin's efforts to guarantee a socio-economic mix in new housing, "the product is small but it's not a comment on the value of the ideas," Mrs. Azevedo said.

She listed the five most promising ways Novato could achieve the housing mix called for in the general plan adopted earlier this year. They included granting developers higher density for providing a percentage of their units at lower cost, reducing standards — hence costs — for subdivision street and other site preparations, reducing utility hookup fees, city land banking and resale at low cost to builders, direct subsidy by local government, and providing rehabilitation loans for older housing and second units on single-family residential lots.

Donald Dickenson of the Novato Plan Review Committee stressed that the city's older downtown area offers "more sociological mix than any other part of Novato." He decried speculators' efforts to buy old homes and replace them with apartments, that price out the old or the younger residents.

He and several other speakers urged revision of property assessment rules to protect the older housing.

Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director of the Marin County Housing Authority, said most federally subsidized housing programs appear to have a short, dim future. However, he said, the so-called 221-D-4 program is expected to bring some medium cost housing to Marin.

He also reported that the authority has committed $70,000 to rehabilitate old, substandard Hamilton Air Force Base housing that has been declared surplus and is expected to be taken over by the county.

Construction firm owner Paul Scheller, the fourth member of the housing needs workshop, said he believed "the building industry is not doing much" for lower cost housing but "I'm sure, given time, the developers will do what they can." He said that mass-produced, factory-assembly line housing failed to provide the answer, and firms that tried it "went broke."

Members of the Novato Human Needs Commission, which sponsored the housing workshop, also briefly discussed the recent workshop on community development and revenue sharing held by the Association of Bay Area Governments.

Last night's session was attended by almost 40 persons, including Novato City Councilmen Dorothy Young, George C. Quesada and F. Wayne Sartain, other city officials; housing authority chairman Irving Perleman, four Novato planning commissioners and several city officials.

Four Sewage Plans High On State List

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Four Marin and Sonoma sewage projects have been earmarked for federal and state grants totaling more than $66 million by the staff of the State Water Resources Control Board.

The four were assigned high priorities in a list of statewide projects totaling $1.3 billion, but four other Marin projects to cost $1,790,000 were ranked too low to qualify for grants next fiscal year. They either must be delayed with the approval of the Regional Water Quality Control Board or be financed entirely from local funds.

An earlier list of projects drafted by the staff in July totaled about $36 million. New to the list was $40 million for a subregional sewage system serving the area from San Rafael to Petaluma.

Federal and state grants can cover 87.5 per cent of the cost of a project.

A special hearing on the list will be held by the board at 10 a.m. on Dec. 18 in the Resources Building auditorium, 1416 Ninth Street. It will be considered for adoption on Jan. 17.

Other high priority projects on the list were North Marin County Water District's $160,000 plan for a collection and treatment system at Tomales, $20 million for a subregional system in Southern Marin, and $15.5 million subregional system for Central Marin.

Ranked below the likely cutoff point for grants were North Marin County Water District's $230,000 project for a sewage system at Olema and Point Reyes National Seashore, $720,000 project for a treatment system at Inverness and $290,000 for its proposed system at Point Reyes Coast Guard Station.

The Olema project was not on the July list, and the Inverness project was listed then at $40,000.

Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District's $550,000 plan to build facilities to reclaim sewage wastewater was ranked near the bottom of the entire list of some 200 projects.

Shortage Of Fuel Threatens Mail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Postmaster General Elmer T. Klassen says Christmas mail could be seriously disrupted this year because of the energy crisis.

He told Congress yesterday that airlines already have cut some flights and are threatening to cut more which otherwise would carry mail. He said the Postal Service's own trucks may be unable to get enough fuel.

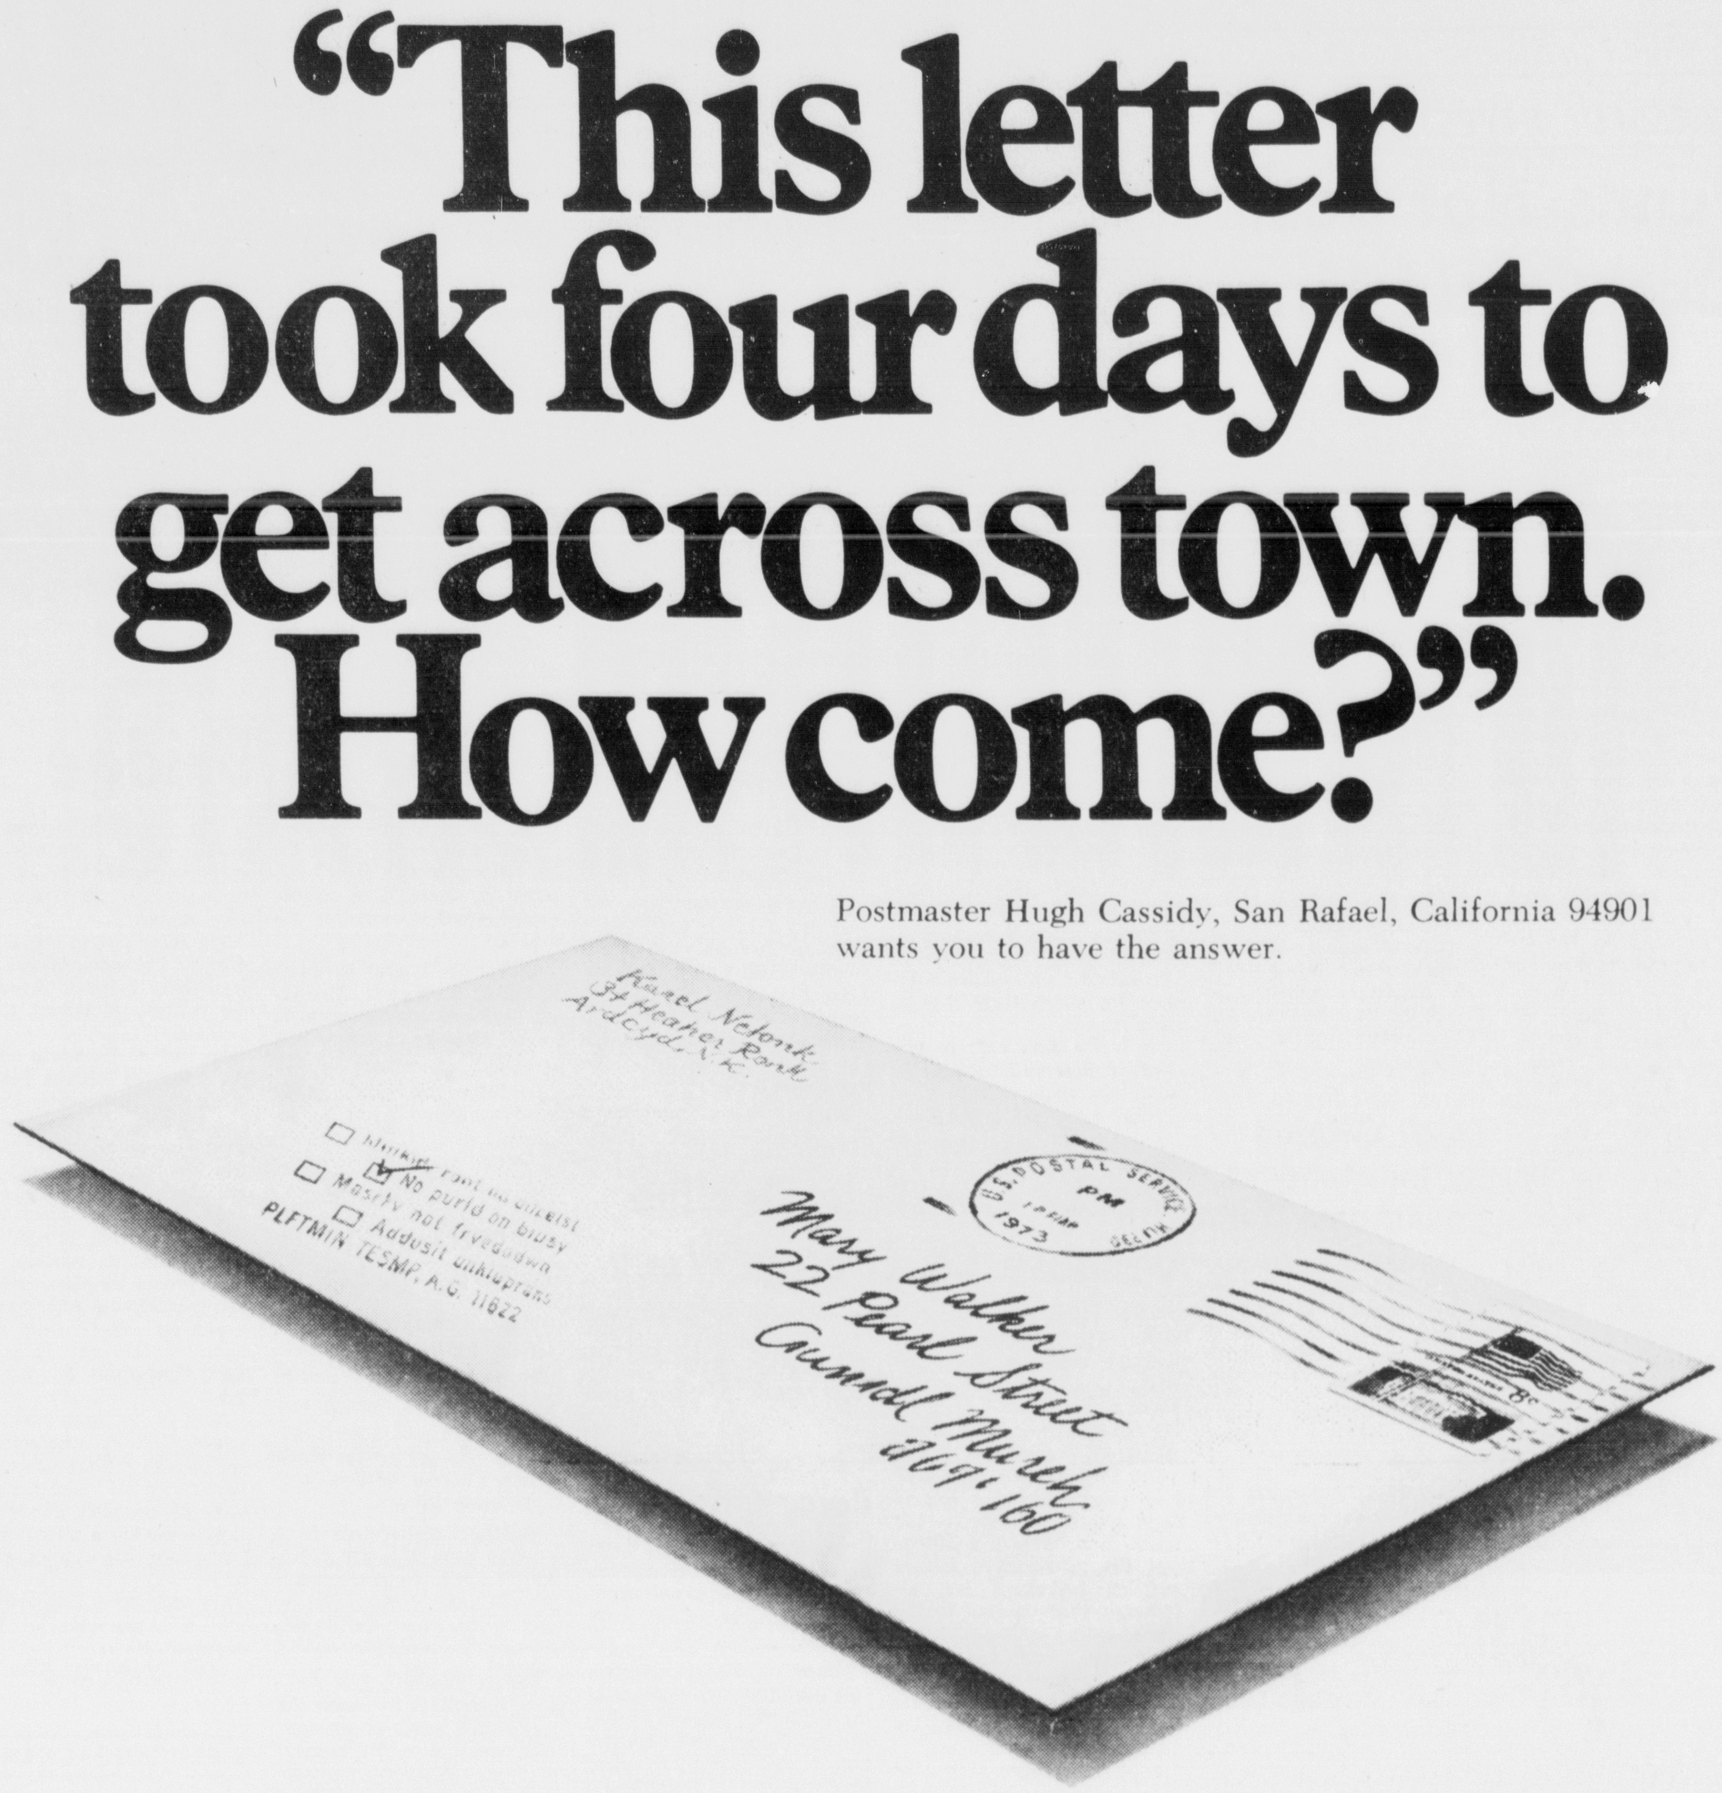
"This letter took four days to get across town. How come?"

Postmaster Hugh Cassidy, San Rafael, California 94901 wants you to have the answer.



How a letter can go wrong.

I see the thousands of packages and letters postal people handle every day. And with all this mail, sometimes mistakes are made.

Our high speed machines, for example, sort thousands of letters an hour. But if someone touches the wrong button, in the blink of an eye, a letter can go the wrong way across the country.

Then too, sometimes we push the right button when the letter has the wrong Zip Code. Same thing happens. The letter takes off for the wrong city, before we can get it going right.

By far and away most mail gets to you on time.

The amount of mail we handle is so huge there'd be hundreds of mistakes every day even if we were 99.9% perfect.

Thanks to the skill of our local people...most always your mail is on time. If you're like most people, you rarely give it a second thought. But when a letter does get to you late, no one is more embarrassed than us.

What you can do.

It's a big help if you write legibly. It can be mighty tough figuring out one person's A's and E's from another's O's and L's. And use the right Zip Code.

Another thing is to mail before the last mail pickup of the day. Your letter can get where it's going a whole day faster that way.

And tell us if something goes wrong with your mail. All of us at the Post Office want you to have good service. And we mean to give it to you.

You have questions.
We want you to have the answers.
